TUNGCHOW PIRACY RUMOURS DECLARED TO BE EXAGGERATED

SHANGHAI WIN RUGBY INTERPORT COLONY THREEQUARTERS FAIL ON WET GROUND ROBERTSON, McLELLAN AND WALKDEN OUTSTANDING

SHANGHAI, YESTERDAY.
SHANGHAI RECORDED THEIR FOURTH VICTORY IN THE INTERPORT RUGBY SERIES TO-DAY WHEN THEY BEAT HONG KONG BY A GOAL, THREE TRIES AND A PENALTY GOAL (17 POINTS) TO A GOAL AND TWO PENALTY GOALS (11 POINTS) AT THE CANDROME, AFTER LEADING AT THE INTERVAL BY 11 POINTS TO 3.
L. G. Robertson, the Colony full-back, was easily the outstanding visitor, while McLellan, the Colony skipper, and Walkden, a front row-forward, starred among the Hong Kong forwards.
For Shanghai, Taylor, at full-back, McGill, the right wing threequarter, Grieve the left-centre threequarter, and Bidwell, on the left-wing, were prominent.

The Hong Kong Ladies Hockey Club, champions of the Carr Clark Cup tournament, were beaten by a goal to nil by the Shanghai Interport team at Soekunpo yesterday. (King's Studio).

MR. DUNCAN TELLS PLAIN FACTS ORDERLINESS KEYNOTE OF WHOLE INCIDENT HAUL OF USELESS MONEY

(Special to "Sunday Herald")

"THE LARGE VALUE OF THE SUPPOSED HAUL OF THE PIRATES IS FALSE," MR. J. N. DUNCAN, THE MASTER IN CHARGE OF 70 CHILDREN WHO WERE ABOARD THE ILL-FATED TUNGCHOW, TOLD THE SUNDAY HERALD LAST NIGHT. "THE BANKNOTES WHICH THEY STOLE ARE USELESS AS THEY ARE INCOMPLETE AND HAVE NOT RECEIVED THE FINAL SIGNATURE OF THE NORTHERN BANKS," HE ADDED.
He went on to say that the reports which had already appeared were in parts erroneous, particularly the one which stated that the 70 children had been confined to the small saloon while the ship was in the possession of the pirates. "The children were not all kept in the saloon, but in their proper accommodation in the fore part of the ship," he added. Mr. Duncan also denied the reports of the screams of the panic stricken children. He definitely stated that there was no panic and described the report as so much sensationalism.
"WE ALL RECEIVED NORMAL MEALS SERVED BY THE STEWARDS, IN SPITE OF THE ABNORMAL DEMANDS MADE UPON THE SHIP'S LARDER BY THE PIRATES."

SINGAPORE BASE LONDON PAPER DECLARES IT IS NO USE AT ALL Advises Letting Base Revert To Jungle "WE SHOULD GO HALF WAY TO MEET JAPAN"

London, Yesterday.
The Singapore Base is useless, declares Mr. Ward Price in a series of articles in the "Daily Mail." It is a thousand times better to cut our loss in Singapore and let the Base go back to jungle than run the risk that its existence may one day embroil us with Japan.
The wise course now, he says, would be to meet Japan's desire for closer relations with Britain at least half way and use our common friendship with her and the United States to smooth out any mistrust between them.—Reuter.

BRITISH MARTYRS CANONISED Executed In Reign Of Henry VIII

Vatican City, Yesterday.
The Pope has decided in favour of the canonisation of Sir Thomas More and John Fisher, Bishop of Rochester, who were beheaded in the reign of King Henry VIII for refusing to give their oath to the Act of Succession, which would have entailed their recognising the King's supremacy over the Pope.
Letters and petitions in favour of the canonisation had been received from 200,000 people in Britain and the Dominions.—Reuter.

WEATHER FORECAST
A ridge of moderately high pressure extends from central China to central Japan. An anticyclone appears to be forming over north-west China. The depression is moving east-north-east across the northern Loochoo Islands. The local forecast for to-day, as issued by the Royal Observatory last night, was north-east winds, moderate; overcast, drizzle and mist.

An early morning drizzle made the ground very slippery and the ball very greasy, which accounted for much fumbling among the backs, chiefly on the part of the visiting team.
Hong Kong were generally superior in the scrums and were more often than not in Shanghai territory, but their threequarters never got going.
The game started sensationally, Taylor landing a great penalty goal from almost the half-way mark to give Shanghai a three points lead in the fifth minute of the game.
This was immediately followed by one of the most brilliant tries of the season, when Grieve ran through the Hong Kong team from the half-way line and sold the dummy twice before scoring for Bidwell to convert.

MANCHUKUO MOVE REQUEST TO OUTER MONOLIAN TROOPS SUSPENSION OF HOSTILITIES PLEDGED

Changchun, Yesterday.
Headquarters of the Manchukuo army to-day handed a note to the Outer-Mongolian military authorities, firstly requesting them to withdraw the Outer Mongolian troops to the south of the Halha River, which forms the boundary between Manchukuo and Outer Mongolia, and to suspend hostilities during the truce negotiations which the Outer-Mongolians requested with the Manchukuo forces near Lake Bolir; secondly, pledging that the Manchukuo troops will suspend hostilities and not advance south of the Halha River.—Reuter.

PEPPER SITUATION SECRET MEETING HELD YESTERDAY BIG GROUP REPORTED TO BE INTERESTED

London, yesterday.
The London General Produce Brokers' Association met to-day to discuss the pepper situation.
Members were sworn to secrecy, but the president, in a communication to Reuter, stated that negotiations were still proceeding.
It is rumoured in the market that there is a possibility that Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday may be declared non-business days for pepper, which would prevent contracts from being taken up.

WALES BEATS SCOTLAND AT RUGBY COUNTRIES TIED IN SERIES DATING FROM 1883 JENKINS DROPS FINE GOAL Thrilling Finish

Cardiff, Yesterday.
Wales, as the result of a late dropped goal, beat Scotland by 10 points to 6 in the Rugby International Championship after leading 6 points to 3 at the interval.
Wales are thus on level terms with Scotland, each country having recorded 22 wins in the whole series of matches dating back to 1883.
A crowd of 70,000 was present in spring-like weather after a morning gale and showers.
Cliff Jones opened the scoring with a brilliant unconverted try in the seventh minute, and three minutes later Wooler also crossed for an unconverted try.

CONSULATE MOVE AT NANKING Mr. Blunt Appointed To Manila

Nanking, Yesterday.
The British Consul General here, Mr. A. P. Blunt, who has been transferred to the post of Consul-General at Manila, is leaving for Manila early next month.
Mr. Peter Bridenax-Bruno, acting Consul General at Tsingtao, will succeed Mr. Blunt.—Reuter.

PEIPING POLICE SENT TO SHANGHAI 1932 Sino-Japanese Trouble Again Recalled

Peiping, Yesterday.
Two hundred Peiping police left by through express this afternoon for Shanghai to join the Public Safety Bureau of Greater Shanghai.
It will be recalled that after the Sino-Japanese trouble in 1932 Peiping supplied 400 police to take over control of the war areas.—Reuter.

PECULIAR PENALTY DEATH PLUS HUGE MONEY FINE Sentence Partially Executed

Madrid, Yesterday.
The heaviest sentence ever passed on a Spanish soldier was partly carried out when ex-sergeant Vasquez, one of the ringleaders in the recent revolt, was shot at Oviedo. He was also fined 50,000,000 pesetas.
Another ringleader, a municipal worker named Arguelles, was also shot.
The Government is claiming $5,500,000 from the Asturian Mining Syndicate for the damage done during the rebellion in Asturias.—Reuter.

The R.M.S. Empress of Canada will arrive here on Wednesday at 7 a.m. After disembarking her passengers she will proceed to Taikoo Dock for her annual overhaul.

OLD CUSTOMS DIE HARD IN KWANGTUNG Lunar New Year Will Be Kept As Usual BUT GOVERNMENT FOLLOWS WESTERN CALENDAR

Canton, yesterday.
Canton residents are ready to usher in the Chinese New Year tomorrow at midnight, although officially the lunar New Year is not recognised in China to-day.
Foreign firms and banks in Shanghai and other parts of the city will suspend business for two days, while some Chinese shops will take a holiday lasting from three to seven days. Chinese shop-keepers work throughout the year and have a vacation only at New Year.
Women are buying flowers, gold fish, joss sticks, sweetmeats etc. for the entertainment of New Year callers. The sidewalks on Wing Hong Road and Sup Pat Po Road are lined up with stalls offering all sorts of goods for New Year. Fortunately the cold snap is over, so that more shoppers will be out in the afternoon and evening.

SHENG AN PIRACY APPEAL TO THE SUPREME COURT Death Sentence On Four Accused SUPREME PENALTY FOR TWO ONLY IN LOWER COURT

Dairen, yesterday.
The Sheng An pirates, four of whom were condemned to death, and the fifth to 10 years' imprisonment, by the Appellate Court at Port Arthur last week, have appealed to the Supreme Court at Port Arthur.
The trial date is not fixed but in all likelihood will take place two to six months hence.—Reuter.

CANTON ACTION REQUESTED Decoy Used As Chinese Transport

Peiping, Yesterday.
The British Consul-General at Canton has made a formal request to the Canton authorities to take energetic measures to round up the Tungchow pirates now that it is known that they are ashore.
It is understood that the British destroyer Decoy is being used to transport Chinese troops who will endeavour to cut off the escape of the outlaws.—Reuter.

LONDON PRESS CRITICISM Urge For Wireless Communication INTERNATIONAL JEALOUSY HINDERS CLEAN-UP

London, Yesterday.
The Tungchow piracy is given a prominent place by the press.
The "Daily Telegraph" in a leading article draws the moral that it is the essential duty of Britain to maintain her navy as the greatest police force of the seas and suggests that ships passing through the pirate area should report to the navy by wireless at frequent intervals.

Minor Piracy Fails JUNK OUTSAILS INVADERS NEAR CHEUNG CHAU

Two small boats each containing five men armed with choppers failed to pirate junk No. 70080, near Cheung Chau on Friday at about 4.30 p.m.
In his report to the police, Sam Ku, owner of the junk, stated that he sailed from Ma Wai, Lantau Island, with a lot and three passengers on board his boat. Before reaching his destination, Pung Chau, two boats containing five men who spoke the hokio dialect approached his boat and called out to stop.
He paid no notice and sailed on, gradually outdistancing them. The alleged pirates then made off in the direction of Cheung Chau.

"They said that they would return anything that was missing as what they wanted was the cargo of the ship and not the passengers' personal property. They fulfilled their promise to a degree.
On the other hand the ladies, girls, and small children were under a considerable strain all the time, seeing armed men using their cabins, although they were not subjected to any extreme violence.
"The leader of the pirates struck me as a highly intelligent man and far above the men under him. I thought it remarkable that he managed to keep control over them, even in the moments of extreme excitement. The pirates themselves were of a very low type of humanity."

PILOT IGNORANT "I do not think that the occupants of the first aeroplane realised what was happening, although I believe that it was a good thing that they did not. If they had and had taken any action, with the pirates on the verge of panic it is impossible to suggest what the result would have been. "When the last boat-load of pirates had been discharged and the boat had returned to the ship again, wireless communication was established." (Continued on Page 15.)

Lloyd George Rumours

London, yesterday.—A move to ascertain Mr. Lloyd George's conditions for entering the Government is believed to be in the making, says the Morning Post's political correspondent, by a group of Ministers, who are acting on their own initiative. It is understood, with the object of persuading Mr. Lloyd George to withdraw his objections to serving in a Government which includes Messrs. Ramsay MacDonald, Neville Chamberlain, and Walter Runciman, but it is believed to be very improbable that they will be able to impose their will on the Cabinet.—Reuter.
An earlier Reuter message stated that there were persistent rumours that Mr. Lloyd George would be asked to join the National Government, owing to the interest aroused by his "New Deal" Bangor speech. It was, however, believed that he would refuse to join any government which included Mr. Neville Chamberlain, Chancellor of the Exchequer, and Mr. Walter Runciman, President of the Board of Trade.

WHO GOES HOME?

By OLIVER BALDWIN

EDWARD SHADLEY had been a Member of Parliament for over twenty years, during which time he had filled many minor Government posts. At the opening of this story he had been two years in office as Minister of Health, and few members were held in higher esteem by all parties.

A little man with snow-white hair, he had about him an air of gentleness that had saved him many a hard knock in the rough and tumble of politics. Opponents felt uncomfortable in attacking him. They knew he would never retaliate with anything but burning sincerity and that under no circumstances would he descend to personalities.

He was close on seventy years of age, and his little bowed figure was seen in more division lobbies than that of any other Minister. Some people called him a crank, but he never minded that, for, as he used to say with his ingratiating smile, "That's the sort of thing you wind up machinery with, isn't it?"

Of course there was one reason why he should have been called a crank, and that was his advocacy throughout the whole of his political life of increased protection for dumb animals. Why that should not be included in the list of everyone's qualities without running the risk of being called a crank is a thing that we cannot explain.

Anyway, if Edward Shadley had one passion it was for dumb animals, and of all animals his favourite was the dog. Ever since he had first entered Parliament he had consistently tried to introduce a Bill for the abolition of vivisection. Refused a first reading of his private Member's Bill times without number, he still persevered, and now he was glad to know that he was no longer alone and that several other Members in the new House were in agreement with him. His chief lieutenant in this campaign was the Member for a northern seat named Carter Cooper, who combined great pugnacity with an exceedingly tender heart.

It was during the summer session that Carter Cooper was granted a second reading to his Bill by an indulgent House, and owing to the influence of Shadley the Government had agreed to allow him time for a third reading. First readings of Bills are purely formal. One merely rises and states briefly the object of the Bill and the names of five or six supporters, and if the assembled members are at all sympathetic, a division is immediately called and the vote is taken without debate.

Should this be carried, as it was in this particular case, the Bill awaits its chance of a second reading and receives it only if the Government will give the requisite time for the debate. After that it goes to "committee" and then comes back for a third and final reading.

It was a wintry evening in November when Carter Cooper rose to introduce the third reading of his Bill, and in front of him on the Treasury bench sat Edward Shadley, allied with satisfaction at the able advocacy of his pet theme by his disciple.

Carter Cooper spoke well and at some length, and as time went on the debate waxed keener and keener. There was plenty of opposition, especially from the doctors, and as Shadley listened to the speeches of his opponents he became more and more worried. By dinner time there had been many speeches, and the Deputy Speaker had a long list still in front of him. Edward Shadley beckoned to Carter Cooper from behind the Speaker's chair, and the latter walked down the gangway towards him.

"How are things?" asked the old man.

Carter Cooper scratched his head.

"I don't like the look of it at all," he replied. "There are too many on the other side."

"Do you think we can carry it?" Carter Cooper shrugged his shoulders.

"I doubt it, but we won't be able to tell till after dinner," he said. "Let me know if things go badly. I shall try and hear as much as I can of the debate, but I have one or two things to do now." And Edward Shadley left the chamber. When Carter Cooper returned to his seat, Tom Dooley, one of the Government Whips leaned towards him. "The old man's going to wind up for you, isn't he?" he whispered.

"Oh, yes, of course," nodded Carter Cooper, "and he'll give them something to put in their pipes."

Upstairs in the Press Gallery the journalists had laid down their pencils. For them the debate was dull. There would be no news value till Edward Shadley rose to speak. These private Bills were all the same; merely an opportunity for every crank in the House to let off steam.

In the public galleries there was little interest felt, and dinner time found the benches half empty. Carter Cooper had no time for dinner. He was determined not to miss a single speech. People he thought would be with him made speeches against the Bill, while others he had imagined as opponents came forward as his friends. By half-past nine he was as uncertain as ever but he felt, whatever the result, the voting would be close. He went out to the Whips' office and scanned the lists to find out who was in the House and who was likely to be away for the division.

He jotted down figures and moved to the other parties' offices. Outside each of these he made further calculations. An Opposition member looked over his shoulder.

"How do you think it will go, Cooper?" he asked. Carter Cooper turned round.

"It's going to very close," he replied.

In his little room off the corridor behind the Speaker's chair, Edward Shadley sat with his head in his hands. He was not feeling too well. There was a pain under his heart that felt as if a tight bandage were tied there. He rose shakily to his feet and moved to a leather sofa. As he lifted his legs up, a spasm of pain showed itself clearly in his face. He pressed his lips tightly together and closed his eyes.

It would soon be time for him to wind up the debate. He must do that. At all costs he must be able to do that; never mind what happened afterwards. Big Ben boomed out ten o'clock, and the sound of the clock brought back countless memories. He thought of the thrill he had experienced all those years ago when he had heard that great bell as he took his seat for the first time in the House of Commons.

How many triumphs had he not experienced under the shadow of that clock. How many defeats—defeats that seemed so absolute that he had never hoped to rise again. And yet fortune had smiled on him once more and here to-day would see the realisation of all his private hopes—perhaps. Because the voting would be close, he must pull himself together. His help would be needed. He must go.

He rose slowly to his feet, but the strain brought the pain back with increased intensity. He sank heavily into his chair, and before he realised the strength of his desire he found the tears coursing down his cheeks. It would be too bad if he could not make one last defence on behalf of his dumb friends, especially on a night like this, but he now knew it was impossible.

With shaking hand he wrote a short note. "I am not very well. I do not feel able to wind up. Forgive me, and best of luck." He then rang the bell on his desk. When the messenger entered he found the old man apparently perfectly normal.

"Take this to Mr. Carter Cooper, please, Heming; but tell him I shall be there for the division. Don't forget that. I shall be there." The messenger left and closed the door.

It was half-past ten when Carter Cooper received the message in the chamber, and if he was worried then at Shadley's absence, he was more worried now. However, there was no time to waste. The division would be called at eleven o'clock and it was time the last speaker should close the debate. A member of the Opposition sat down at the conclusion of his speech. The Speaker looked at the Government front-bench.

"Mr. Shadley," he called. There was no response. Members searched the House with their eyes. The Speaker looked at Carter Cooper. Carter Cooper indignantly pointed to a man sitting in front of him who had not

HOW attractive is the sleek head with every hair in place! Some women seem to achieve this with little or no trouble. Others find it very difficult. Only those who have suffered from straggly ends can fully appreciate the boon of a fixative which will really keep one's hair sleek, the waves in place and the ends flat to the head.

A chemist recently made up the formula which is given here to-day. It has been used and it has been proved the most effective brilliant-fixative cream ever used.

How To Prepare It

Put into a clean dry bottle (large enough to hold all the ingredients) one drachm of tragacanth and two drachms of spirit of chloroform and shake them well together. Quickly add water up to eight ounces and shake well. It is important to do this quickly or lumps will form.

Next, add an ounce (or a little less) of almond oil and a few drops of any favourite perfume and again shake well. If you have a cream-making machine put all this through it for a perfect emulsion, though this is not essential.

If almond oil is not available, pure olive oil will do quite as well.

The following are the directions for use: Pour a little of the cream into the palm of one hand, rub both hands together and then apply them to the hair. Work the cream well in. Then comb the hair to distribute the cream through it. After this, coax the waves in the way you want them to go, then finish dressing the hair.

No Dusty Deposit

Finally, arrange the hair as you want it to remain and you will find that it will keep neat for the whole day or evening. Nor does this cream leave a dusty deposit. The hair will be glossy and pliable.

This fixative cream is useful, too, to coax a wave into the hair. Apply it generously at night, then, with flat fingers, pinch the hair into waves, put in setting pins or combs and leave the hair to dry.

Any chemist will be able to supply the above ingredients or (if you prefer it) make up the formula for you.

THE RAGPICKER AND THE LADY'S HAT

London.
A S austere a lady as you could imagine was going along Piccadilly, on one of those recent windy days when an atmospheric paroxysm tore her hat right off her head. It must have had the elements of stream-lining, for it made a rather noteworthy flight, gaining an altitude of probably 50 feet and covering almost a block in distance. It made a good landing across Bond Street near the Circus. The lady had been able to keep it in sight, but her pursuit was slow because of the traffic lights, and by the time she had caught up, a ragpicker, or at any rate an old man with a bag who had been investigating trash cans, had the hat and was pulling the feathers off, preparatory, apparently, to stuffing it in his pack. He gave the hat up, but with a sullen air of having been cheated.

A VARIABLE FACTOR

THE evening décolletage is a variable factor. It can be high at the front and low at the back, or low in the front and high at the back.

WATCH THE SILK

WHEN laundering silk stockings, put on a pair of old washleather gloves. There will then be no risk of finger-nails catching in the silk.

COARSELY KNITTED SILK

COARSELY knitted yellow silk is smart for hunting and back-lung; cherry-coloured silk is an innovation that has been taken; also cherry-and-yellow mixed.

Women Through Women's Eyes

Feminine "Cleverness"

FEMININE cleverness is more than a matter of rivalling men in business. See these quotations from recent novels by women:

Margaret M. Brash in "Ann of Carthage" (Jarrolds, 7s. 6d.).

"It takes a jolly slight more art and skill to run a successful married life than it does to run a profession. . . . It makes me rather sick when I hear clever women running down housewives, people who run a home. Any ass who has more brains can run a profession, but it takes an artist to run a family."

Elaine Hamilton in "Peril at Midnight" (Ward, Lock, 7s. 6d.).

"You and I take a one-second look at a woman and know everything from the quality of her stockings to the face powder she uses."

Margaret Hes in "Season Ticket" (Gollancz, 7s. 6d.).

"Strange beings, women! With all their pretence at giving and giving in, they know how to get their own way; know how to hide themselves in their own little cubby-holes and superiority, and showed themselves only when it pleased their fancy."

NAPKINS WITH FRINGE

WHEN ironing napkins with fringe, strike the fringe gently on the edge of the ironing board, one side at a time. This will make the fringe straight and fluffy, without ironing. Finish the napkin without touching the fringe.

SPRING NOTION

TURQUOISE-BLUE straw with pointed crown in matching satin is a spring millinery notion.

INDIVIDUALITY AIR

WITH simplicity in line, the keynote of dress generally, more elaboration is allowed in accessories than would normally be the case. Individuality can be lent to the plainest dress by an original collar, bow, or belt; or perhaps an unusual piece of jewellery can be used to give distinction.

SHANGHAI INTERPORT SOCCER PLAYERS IMPRESS IN WORK-OUT

HONG KONG SHOULD BEAT MACAO

SECOND ENCOUNTER IN INTERPORT SERIES

MUCH DEPENDS ON DULLA SINGH

WITH a much improved attack and a powerful and sound defence, the Colony Interport hockey team are favoured to beat the Macao Hockey Club at Macao this afternoon in the second of a series of annual Interport contests.

The Macao team, who have returned recently from Singapore and Malaya, have gained valuable experience as a result of their trip, and Hong Kong will have to play all out from start to finish to obtain a victory.

The deciding factor to-day will be stamina, for the Macao team, comprised mostly of youth, are undoubtedly the fastest combination in these parts.

In the Colony defence both Metcalf and Rodrigues are equal to the task of keeping up with the Macao forwards, but it is doubtful whether Dulla Singh, our brilliant centre-half, will be able to keep up the pace. In Ramalho, Dulla Singh will be marking the fastest forward in South China and if he falls in stamina Macao can rest assured of victory.

W. Reed, probably the finest hockey-half-back in China, has the very difficult task of keeping A. Angelo, the fast and tricky Macao left-winger under control.

Angelo Known Too Well

Angelo was to a great extent responsible for Macao forcing a draw at Hong Kong last year when he sped along the left-wing, beat our half-backs and made the opening from which Costa netted the equaliser. Hong Kong supporters can, however, rest assured that in Reed the right flank of the Colony's defence is in safe hands.

On the other wing, Alf Din, who was brought into the Colony side at the last moment in preference to Sommers, has displayed brilliant form throughout the season and is equal to the task assigned him in preventing Nolaco, the Macao right-winger and Costa, their most prolific goal-scorer—from reaching his charge.

With Rodrigues behind him and possibly Kartar Singh in attendance, Alf Din should provide a formidable obstacle to the Macao right-wing combine.

Divett and Garthwaite, the Colony right-wing, are a formidable pair together, stickwork and hard hitting being a feature of their play. Divett makes his first appearance against Macao and should cause Lino Ferreira and Cardoso much anxiety, while Garthwaite will be a danger anywhere near the circle.

Guruchan Singh, who makes his second appearance against Macao, having netted the Colony's only goal in the previous encounter, is probably the most dangerous of the Colony forwards.

An unselfish player, he distributes the ball well and in one of the finest exponents of stickwork in the Colony.

Kartar Singh and Lal Singh, the brilliant Army and Punjab left-wing combine, make up the Colony forward quintet.

Lal Singh's Advantage

Lal Singh will be playing opposite to Airoso, Macao's very fine right-half, and many a rare tussle between these two should be witnessed.

Lal Singh's hockey is featured by tenacity in keeping on his man until he has achieved his object. A great spoiler in defence and a very clever exponent of the reverse-stick shot, he must be stopped by the Macao defence if their charge is to remain intact.

Judging on the recent game between Macao and Malaya, Rosario and Costa, the Macao inside-left and inside-right, are likely to be the most dangerous forwards in the Macao attack.

With two fast and hard-hitting wingers in Nolaco and Angelo, and an excellent leader in Ramalho, the Colony's defence will be fully tested.

Conditions, definitely, favour Macao, and with the ground advantage they should put up a stern front.

Rough Trip In Store?

With the present monsoon blowing the trip to Macao this morning is not likely to benefit the Colony team, who will be given a respite of about two hours before they meet Macao at 2.30 p.m.

Captain Klum of the Army and

Messrs. A. A. Dand and G. T. Palmer are travelling with the team to Macao this morning.

The special excursion steamer S.S. Sui Tai of the Hong Kong, Canton and Macao Steamboat Company, leaves Hong Kong this morning at 9.30 a.m. and Macao at 5.30 p.m., giving intending visitors to Macao an opportunity to witness the game and return to Hong Kong on the same day.

The game will commence at 2.30 p.m. sharp and the teams are:—Macao:—Alameda; J. Rodrigues and M. Cardoso; A. Airoso, J. Ferreira and Lino Ferreira; F. Nolaco, L. Costa, F. Ramalho, H. Rosario and A. Angelo. Hong Kong:—A. Hollingsworth; N. W. Metcalf and A. M. Rodrigues; W. A. Reed, J. Dulla Singh and Alf Din; G. E. R. Divett, C. C. Garthwaite, Guruchan Singh, Kartar Singh and Lal Singh.

Time Of To-morrow's Hockey Match Changed To 11.30 a.m.

Yesterday morning the Shanghai and the Hong Kong Interport teams were the guests, at the Jockey Club, of Mrs. T. E. Pearce, the President of the Hong Kong Ladies' Hockey Association, who greeted the visitors. Miss Bloomfield replying.

Following yesterday's game against the Hong Kong Ladies at Sookunpo, the Shanghai team and reserves were the guests of the Hong Kong Ladies at a tea at the Gloucester Building.

To-day the visitors will be taken on a picnic to the New Territories and will probably have tea at Castle Peak. The evening will

COLONY LADIES' BRIGHT CHANCES

SHANGHAI HOCKEY XI UNIMPRESSIVE

WEAK INTERMEDIATE LINE: TIMID FORWARDS

H.K. LADIES LOSE BY LONE GOAL

A GOAL scored by Miss C. Nichols 20 minutes after the start of the game gave the Shanghai Interport Ladies' hockey team their first win in the Colony when they encountered the Hong Kong Ladies, Champions of the Caer Clark Cup tournament, before a fairly large crowd at Sookunpo yesterday afternoon.

Though a drizzle fell during the glowing reports which heralded their arrival here. They will field the same team against the selected Hong Kong eleven next Tuesday, and, allowing for the fact that the visitors have yet to settle down as a team, there is every hope of a Hong Kong win.

The visitors have four outstanding players—the Misses A. Collaco and J. Rachburn, the left wing pair, and F. Bomko and E. Victal, two very capable full-backs.

The local champions played well to hold the visitors to only one goal; the defence emerging from a gruelling 60 minutes with flying colours. Had the Hong Kong Ladies displayed more thrust at forward the result would have been very different.

The northerners, quite obviously, were not used to strict refereeing and were continually nonplussed by the perfectly sound decisions given by Messrs. G. T. Palmer and P. J. Barlow, who handled the game in a very praiseworthy manner. They play a more boisterous game than their southern rivals and are extraordinarily determined in their tackling. Their team-work suggests that the side has not played together very often, several instances occurring yesterday of one player tackling another of her own side.

Goalkeeper Weak
Miss Ephgrave was given few opportunities to shine, but failed to impress. She is the impetuous type of goalkeeper who remembers only to use her stick instead of her feet.

The backs are the best pair seen in the Colony. Hard-hitting and accurate, they cover one another perfectly.

The half-back line is the weak link of the side, and their slowness, despite the fine support of the full-backs, should offer many loopholes for the speedy Hong Kong attack on Tuesday. It would not be at all surprising to see our three inside forwards burst through the centre in attack after attack.

MOSS AND BRIGHT IN BRILLIANT FORM AGAINST CHINESE

NAVY SCORE FOUR GOOD GOALS

ATHLETIC REPLY WITH ONE

In a fast and interesting game at Causeway Bay yesterday the Navy gained a convincing win over the Athletic in their Second Division soccer encounter, the final score being 4 goals to 1 in their favour.

The Chinese were never given time to settle down, and, with a wet and slippery ground against their style of play, found it difficult to overcome the sterling defence put by Solomon and Moss, with McSweeney playing very confidently behind them.

ACCURATE FIRST-TIME CLEARANCES

COLLACO SEEN AS BIG MENACE

(By R.G.)

THE Shanghai Interport footballers, who arrived here yesterday morning by the R.M.S. Empress of Canada, were given their one and only work-out yesterday afternoon, when the team and reserves, with the exception of N. Z. Lee, were seen in action on the Club de Recreio ground at King's Park.

My immediate impression of the team was that nine-tenths of the complement were very young and of small stature, but the exhibition they gave in passing and goal-kicking was delightful and indicates that Hong Kong will have to fight every inch of the way for victory.

Ward in goal is one of the tallest members of the team and showed plenty of confidence with all manner of shots, being particularly effective in bringing down the high shots. He was, however, a trifle shaky with ground shots and was seen to fumble several.

ISLEY TO REFEREE BIG GAME

Officials Nominated For Three Matches

Sergt. E. G. Isley, who refereed both the Interport football trial games in a very capable manner, has been selected to referee the Interport match between Hong Kong and Shanghai to-morrow afternoon on the Club ground, commencing at 3 p.m. sharp. The linesmen will be C.Q.M.S. Hyde and Cpl. Twatles.

Petty Officer H. Holding, one of our better known referees, will control the game on Tuesday between Shanghai and the Combined Chinese, while the linesmen will be Petty Officer Radall and Ldg. Seaman Food.

S.E.P.O.—G. Shobbrook will referee the final game between the visitors and the United Services, while Y.O.S. Fernie and P. O. Jackson will run the touchlines.

Pen Sketches Of Visitors

The following are pen-sketches of the Shanghai Interport football team:

W. WARD, Shanghai's custodian, first took up association football while at the St. Louis College in Tientsin. After he had graduated, he went to Shanghai where he joined the Association Sportif Français as their custodian. He was a member of their team when they won the First Division of the Shanghai soccer league. An all-round er, Ward is a brilliant swimmer and last year represented Shanghai in the Triangular Interport contest against Hong Kong and Tientsin. He swam in the 50 Yards, the 100 Yards and the Medley Relay. This is his first soccer Interport.

JACK SHUTE, the northern full-back, never took the game up seriously until he joined the Shanghai Police. He then joined their soccer side and his success as a full-back was instantaneous. He has represented the Police Recreation Club for the last three seasons and makes an excellent understudy to Jimmy Quayle, Shanghai's most famous Police full-back.

All the team appeared optimistic regarding their chances against Hong Kong, and from what I was told of the ground conditions during their trip to Shanghai, it would appear that the present weather conditions were suiting them down to the ground.

The Shanghai team will have a disadvantage in weight, for their average weight is about 140 pounds against Hong Kong's 100.

Mr. Grimshaw informed me last night that they would not indulge in any further practices.

Marcial impressed at full-back, being very cool and possessing an effective block with either foot. He kicks a good length ball and has plenty of sting behind it. Lee Ning and Shute, the other backs, were also good, especially the former, whose first-time efforts connected every time.

Romedios, the skipper and centre-half, was not seen very much in action and filled in his time correcting minor faults in the rest of the team.

At the beginning of the practice he was seen in the centre of the field distributing the ball to his wingers, Pascual, on the right, and Greenberg, on the left.

Chen's Fine Passing

H. P. Chen, a Tung Hwa half-back, gave a very good display of distribution, his ground passes being neat and reaching their objective every time with just enough force behind them.

Not much was seen of Symons or H. Mudar, but both gave the impression of clever and clean play, particularly the latter, who had plenty of power behind his shots.

Favacho is an old Interporter and is likely to be a dangerous forward. He has played continually for the last six or seven years on the right-wing. Yesterday he was seen to vary the length of his centres to suit the call-signs of his inside-forwards.

Collaco Very Fast

Collaco, who makes his second appearance in Hong Kong in his third Interport, is exceedingly fast on the ball and is a deadly shot. His control was marvellous, while he neatly placed the ball out of Ward's reach on every occasion.

K. C. Chen, who is on his second Interport visit to the Colony and who will probably lead the Shanghai attack, is another Shanghai forward who will be a positive menace to the Colony defence. A good shot off either foot, he is deadly in his first-time efforts and places the ball with great accuracy.

Boissiere, who visited Hong Kong for the 1933-34 Interport, as a reserve, has the most powerful left-footed drive I have seen from any footballer here, including Gosano.

Slightly built, but very fast on the ball, he hits the ball like a sledgehammer, and, in spite of this, manages to keep it low. He was not seen on the run, but the impression he left with me was one of speed and good ball control.

Greenberg Disappoints

J. Greenberg was the only member of the team who did not impress me with his shooting, but I was later informed that he is about the fastest winger in north China with a good shot in either foot.

His centres were wrongly directed yesterday and he seemed more inclined to boot the ball with his right foot than with his left.

Mr. Rupert Grimshaw, the President of the Shanghai Football Association and Mr. J. Watson, who accompanied the team as the coach, were also present, and saw to it that none of the players over-worked themselves.

AIR DEFENCE MUST COME FIRST

Sea And Land Forces Inadequate To-Day Britain's Responsibilities Of Empire

(By CAPT. NORMAN MACMILLAN)

BRITAIN has a great responsibility. It is a responsibility which cannot be shirked. It is a responsibility which must be met.

Within our Empire we enrol one third of the population of the world. No Dominion or Colony is strong enough to defend itself, yet never in the history of our race have the over-seas parts of our Empire been more imperilled by the threat of isolation from the Motherland.

Our lines of communication, formerly guaranteed by the British Navy, are threatened by the air fleets of intervening countries. Bombing aircraft cannot be held in check by mines, guns, fortifications or any combination of the naval and land defences of the past.

No Safety Now For Ships
The Mediterranean is a bottleneck that can be closed. The portion of our Fleet that lies there can be immobilised. Our Home Fleet is not safe in harbour or out of it.

In spite of our naval superiority in the last war we lost nearly 8,000,000 tons of shipping, most of it by submarine action. Unless we are prepared to stand to lose far more by air action in the future. To-day we could not guarantee to provide food and other necessities to this country in time of war.

With the 5-5-3 naval ratio of to-day, Britain has no supremacy on the sea at any point in the world. When the Japanese attacked Shanghai in 1931 the Japanese Grand Fleet sailed into the Whangpoo and cut off the British and American ships that lay higher up the river. So long as we rely on the defensive possibilities of our Navy our interests in the Far East can be destroyed and air fleets broken up. With air squadrons posted in sufficient numbers at strategic points throughout our Empire the Minister of Defence could guarantee that no enemy could invade—or even attack by air—one single part of our territory throughout the world.

Navy And Army, Second
The naval ships then required would be smaller and faster and heavily armed with bombing aircraft to secure the safety of our Mercantile Marine from raiding surface and air enemies. Merchant ships would mount catapults which must be ready in reserve—to launch bombers from their decks in time of war. For bombs are infinitely more efficient than guns.

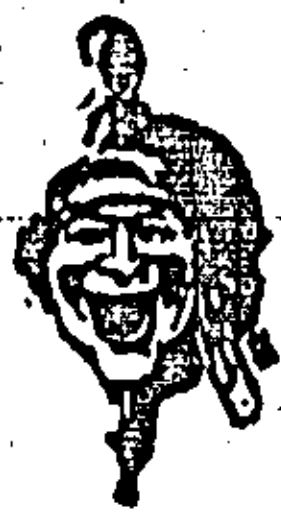

The Army would become an armed police force, charged with the duty of maintaining civil order throughout the Empire. The value of infantry can be increased (even with reduction in numbers) by equipping each soldier with a machine-gun rifle. If increased numbers were ever needed, infantry can be trained more quickly than any other arm. The size of our standing Army in India could be reduced safely by quadrupling our air squadrons there.

Mobility of artillery, infantry, tanks and engineers would become of great importance. That means light armament. Big guns can be replaced by heavy bombs. The heavy artillery of the future must have wings.

Wise Spending
It is unreasonable to demand of any nation in time of peace that it shall spend more upon its defence than it is capable of paying on an economic basis. But the citizen has the right to demand that the money he contributes shall provide him with the most effective defence that can be created.

Britain spends enough to provide adequate defence. She fails to get it because the Navy and the Army stand traditionally before the Air Force. To get value for our money any safety for our people we must make the Air Force our first line of defence. We shall not be safe until our Air Force flies as our Navy sailed before the war—to a Two Power Standard.

WISE & OTHERWISE

Ooze Your Lady Friend?
"Woman taking mud baths at Southend."

Life has its compensations. A centipede with corns may get a lot of satisfaction at seeing a griffin with three feet of sore throat.

PROOF
Well, the slimming craze is definitely dead. I recently saw a pub advertising for a good all-round barmaid.

THE CHUCKER-OUT
The power behind the throne.

You can forgive a man his English if his Scotch is all right.

INHIBITED
Then there was the man who always gave up his seat in a crowded bus as he had been taught from infancy to respect a woman with a strap in her hand.

ASKED AND ANSWERED
"Is there anything more painful than sitting in a dentist's waiting-room for half an hour?" asks a correspondent. "Yes! sitting in his chair."

It takes only a little sunshine to make you forget a whole winter.

This Is Extremely Clever
An essayist likens autumn to a business man. The only similarity I can see is that they both employ the loose leaf system.

MODERN PROVERB
One touch of scandal makes the whole world grin.

Answer To Correspondent
An appendix, Clarence, is a thing which is only found nowadays in books.

Before you take a correspondence course on how to get more money further they will discover a million-dollar man under it. A similar course on how to cut down expenses.

PAH!
A scientist says that hard work is the secret of success. It's reading things like this that makes me lose faith in scientists.

Matrimonial Marmur
A wife should be like statuettes—always bright, but never it is understood that the husband didn't get a chance to use his.

"My parrot can whine like a dog when it has been beaten."
"What? Do you beat your parrot like a dog?"

NO CHANGE
Archaeologists have excavated the thumb of a million-year-old woman. Perhaps if they look a little more they will discover a million-year-old man under it.

Competition
Attempts are being made to broadcast the stars. So far we have only known the heavenly bodies on the films.

SHOUTED DOWN
A man, accused of a breach of the peace, told the magistrate that his wife and he had some words. It is understood that the husband didn't get a chance to use his.

SAFETY FIRST
At a London golf club recently a sparrow perched on a golf ball just as a player was about to drive. With many golfers, of course, that is much the safest place.

It takes nine tailors to make a man and one dressmaker to break him.

The glazier who celebrated his birthday by giving all his young friends catapults.

Improved
Drug smuggling is said to be increasing along the coasts. Still waters apparently also run deep.

NOT POPULAR
At the publishers' party—the slightly deaf critic who thought they were talking about a war to end Waugh.

Do not waste time worrying about the soft job you think some one else has. He is probably doing as much worrying as you are.

COMIC CUTS
"Some of the hairdressing fashions are grotesque."

Drawing The Line
A London magistrate pointed out to a woman who applied for a separation that she had married her husband for "better or worse." But not, apparently, for good.

Matter Of Time
The latest fashion in America is for girls to have their sweethearts' portraits painted on their finger nails. They'll soon be under their thumbs anyway.

Many men spend money they haven't got on goods they don't like to impress people they don't like.

The Tungchow

THE seizure of the "Tungchow" came very near to causing an outcry for the suppression of piracy without regard to the susceptibilities of the Nanking Government. Our readers are well acquainted with the history of the long and sinuous negotiations on this subject that have resulted in a policy of polite evasion, of an obvious duty which is all in favour of the pirates. The attitude of quiescent toleration of violent breaches of the law of peace and order seems to be natural to the public, particularly of the international public, up to a point. The line of what will be borne without violent protest and forcible action is crossed when the victims of the law-breakers are defenceless children. In this case it happened that the pirates did not injure the seventy children who were on their way back to school; and the leader seems to have amused himself by distributing oranges, while the usual three meals a day were provided as if nothing had happened. But even if there was no intention of harming any of them, it still remains a lucky accident that with bullets flying around there were no unintentional accidents.

It appears to be established as a fact, by the unanimous testimony of many American writers, that it was the kidnapping of the Lindbergh baby that roused the nation to take exceptional measures for "law enforcement." Nothing has so puzzled the European observer as the indifference shown by the average American citizen to the defiance of the gangster malefactors which has become responsible for the frequency of murders and kidnappings. The murders consequent on being "put on the spot" had nothing adventurous or romantic about them. Given a free market for the sub-machine gun, and a total lack of scruple, nothing was easier than to put a bullet through a man's back when he happened to be looking the other way. Quite possibly if the films had shown how the thing was done in a realistic way as an item of news rather than as an incident in the adventures of a man who appeared to be taking far greater risks than he actually did, the popular imagination would have been caught long ago. Inattention to the growing evil allowed it to mount to a total of ten thousand murders a year, as compared with a hundred and sixty in England, and an even smaller number in several other countries. When all is said that can be said of the funds at the disposal of the gangs through Prohibition, and the conflict between the State and the Federal jurisdictions, it is still a remarkable thing that the uprising of a flood of popular indignation was so long deferred.

Even more impressive is the fact that cases of kidnapping, surely one of the most detestable and cowardly crimes, were allowed to reach more than a thousand a year before the case of the child of a famous and popular father caused the national wrath to boil over. One can understand how the carrying off of a rich banker may arouse in certain minds an attitude of half amused approval such as has always excused the crimes of a Robin Hood; or an admiration for nerve and pluck which was the guerdon of a Dick Turpin who took his life in his hands. But the carrying off of an innocent child to extort money from the parents is a crime which strikes at the very root of civilisation, and scarcely bears thinking about. Yet there had been hundreds of such cases before the Lindbergh case caught the attention of the world.

The fortunate escape from accidental injury of the children on the "Tungchow" will probably mean a prolonged immunity for the pirates of the China Coast. There is only one way to check this nuisance. A pirate is an outlaw, and an outlaw can be followed and summarily dealt with anywhere in the country he belongs to; let China agree to allow without objection any of the Powers interested in trade in these waters to take such means of detection by sea or land as will secure that piracy will no longer be worth while. The suppression could be effected in no long period if the protection of what is really a misplaced deference to international law were withdrawn; and it would be a benefit and not an insult to China.

ANNOUNCEMENT

The engagement is announced between Miss Helen Fursova of Shouson Hill Road and Mr. Arthur Mylo, Civil Engineer, Tak Hing Street, Kowloon.

FILM PROPAGANDA

WHAT ever we may say about the quality of British goods there can be no doubt that the Americans have us "bent to a fizzle" in salesmanship. It was England, for instance, that pioneered in the way of plumbing and sanitary fittings; but the early type of film was very fond of pretty ladies just emerging from the bath, and as these ladies were of the type that was likely to have the best of everything it was soon taken for granted that the Hollywood style of bathroom fittings was the ideal. What England has lost by the consequent change of taste it would be difficult to estimate. At any rate the old country was very slow to realise that the cinema had reached a worldwide public that was better content to sit in a comfortable chair and see things than to read advertisements. The application of the same principle to politics was bound to come; and there again the States took the lead. Whether in the "News Reels" that make us familiar with the physical aspect and mannerisms of the "big bosses" or in the "features" it is the same story. If we read something about Mr. Hoover or President Roosevelt, or Mussolini or Hitler, it is like a letter from home giving the latest news about an old friend. The English statesmen are little but names in a cable and sometimes photographs in an illustrated paper. These things cannot create the sense of personal liking and intimacy that we have for people that we have met or seen, and we have got quite used to the sight or meeting-being indirect through the medium of the screen. In fact if one includes the discomfort of the standing in a big crowd, eager to interrupt, with a fat man occasionally stepping on to one's toes, at a public meeting of the old type, it is very doubtful if one does not see more of the man on the screen and hear more of him on the wireless. Anyway, to a permanent resident of Hong Kong the impression grows that Presidents must be much bigger men than Prime Ministers. The Congress has never had so big a question to deal with in the ordinary course of legislation as the new Constitution for India, but what does Sir Samuel Hoare look like? Mr. Anthony Eden has recently achieved a European reputation; how does he walk and dress and do his hair? We know all these things about "Lindy" and fifty other notables.

When running a little business in Essex his real opportunity arrived. Acting as agent for a motor-coach firm, he decided, within about a week of his appointment, that he could make more money by running an omnibus himself. He bought one and drove it, with his son—who is now only about 21—as the conductor.

SERVICE TO CAUSES

IN applying the art of advertisement to the promotion of public causes the first maxim is that the indirect method is far more effective than the direct. A panorama of elegant bathroom fittings would have no effect at all compared with the pretty lady in domestic surroundings, and some of the early films with a purpose fell into this pitfall.

ROMANCE OF ROAD AND AIR

COLOURFUL CAREER OF EDWARD HILLMAN FROM POVERTY TO OWNING GREAT BUSINESSES

MR. Edward Henry Hillman, whose death was announced last month, was one of the outstanding figures in British commercial aviation. Yet only a few years ago he was finding it difficult to earn a living. Earlier than that, as a poor boy in Essex, he often went short of food and a bed.

A remarkable man in many ways, he had a strong and likeable personality, which impressed itself on everyone he met; even people who disagreed with him were unflinching in their admiration of his straightforward character.

Lacking the advantage of what is ordinarily called education, Mr. Hillman was able, by shrewdness and hard work, combined with striking enterprise, to develop great business organisations from nothing. His biggest achievement came just before his death in the successful flotation of Hillman's Airways Ltd., with a capital of £150,000.

Transport Vehicle Mania
Throughout his life transport vehicles were a passion with him, and in the past 15 years he used one kind after another.

As a boy he had joined the Army, when he was finishing his service, at the end of the war, he was a non-commissioned officer who was in charge of 30 railway engines. But that was merely incidental. The vehicles he wanted to control must be on the highway, carrying the public at remunerative rates. A cycle business proved of little help. He became interested in the sale of motorcars. Then he went to work as a taxi-driver. Before long he was owning his own fleet.

"Fare" of Destiny
When running a little business in Essex his real opportunity arrived. Acting as agent for a motor-coach firm, he decided, within about a week of his appointment, that he could make more money by running an omnibus himself. He bought one and drove it, with his son—who is now only about 21—as the conductor.

He sold his business in order to devote himself to this new enterprise, but it did not prosper. Traffic on the route between Romford and Chelmsford was disappointing. Petrol bills were heavy and hard to meet. Other expenses were mounting, too, and he decided, in despair, to sell his bus. Turn Of The Tide

On the way to a possible purchaser he was halted, however, by a passenger. Unable to resist the chance of a "fare," he changed his mind—and then he kept his service going. Shortly afterwards he found himself the only provider of a "bus" service to Chelmsford on Christmas Day, and the little success he achieved was sufficient to make him branch out on a big scale.

Very quickly afterwards he had acquired a great fleet of motor coaches running to various parts of Essex. With little capital, but magnificent optimism and a rapidly developed organisation, he had become the owner of between 100 and 200 coaches, when the bringing in to operation of the London Traffic Passenger Board interrupted his plans.

Litsen Citrata.

The afternoon of Saturday Jan. 26 was not ideal for climbing, bird watching or for any form of Natural History pursuit; it was cold and rainy. A short walk only was therefore made along the Kowloon catchwater to a little way beyond the "Amah" rock. During fine and sunny weather at almost all times of the year this is an excellent district for butterflies, which sometimes may be seen in swarms of hundreds or thousands of individuals feeding on the flowers of the Ivy tree Heplopleurum octophyllum; but not a butterfly was to be seen. It was too wet. A large number of the common resident Spotted-necked Dove was seen, in fact more or less species than of all others. The silver bell like notes of innumerable White-eyes were heard but few of these diminutive green birds were seen. One or two thrushes were noticed but the light was too bad for identification of the species.

Litsen citrata has been in flower since the beginning of the month and the air was fragrant with its lemon scented odours. The tree looks like a willow with its slender branches, willow like leaves and clusters of small flowers which in the distance appear like catkins. But the tree is actually in the Camphor tree, family, the Lauraceae. The tree is deciduous and when in flower may be devoid of foliage. The tree is unisexual, one tree bearing only male and another only female flowers. The male tree, is the more attractive because the golden stamens, in between the white petals and bracts make the flowers appear lemon coloured. The female are less attractive because the edges of the broad stigmas blacken and thus give the flowers a dirty appearance. This tree is especially protected by law with Eukalyptus quinquiflorus, the New Year Flower and all the Rhododendrons (Azaleas) because they flower at the time of the Chinese New Year and if unprotected, by law would soon be eliminated from the Colony's Flora. Actually it was the rapid disappearance of these beautiful trees and shrubs which led to their protection.

Mr. Thomas Mitchell Laid To Rest

LARGE GATHERING PAY LAST RESPECTS

The funeral of the late Mr. Thomas Mitchell, of the staff of the Texas Oil Company, who passed away at St. Paul's Hospital on Friday morning, was held yesterday afternoon at the Colonial Cemetery, Happy Valley, the Rev. E. G. Powell officiating.

The late Mr. Mitchell came to Hong Kong from Australia about 10 years ago and joined the generating station of the China Light and Power Company in July, 1925. He remained with this company until December, 1931, when he left to join the Texas Oil Company, where he was superintendent of the lubricating oil department.

Wild Fruits

It is curious that at this time of the year there should be any of the edible autumn fruits still obtainable but on top of Ma-on-shan a fortnight earlier we found several. Within a few yards we found fruits of the wild Kumquat, Atalantia hindsii, the berry of the Rosa myrtille, Rhodomyrtus tomentosa and berries of a wild Persimmon, Diospyros sp. The writer sampled all three the last being by far the most horrid. In January in Tai Po Market wild Kumquats may be seen for sale, they are preserved in syrup or candied. In September or October the fruits of Rhodomyrtus under the name of Kong nim are gathered by Chinese children and sold in the villages, they can be made into good jelly something like Guava jelly. The wild Persimmons are not utilized to our knowledge. The Kowloon hills are good localities for wild fruits but a great many of these would be required to satisfy a climber's hunger so he is advised to carry his lunch and not to rely on the fruits of the earth.

DEER HORNS STOLEN

Pair Sold For $50 After Trick

Charged with the theft of two deer horns, valued at $400, Tsang Cheong, unemployed, was sentenced to three months' hard labour by Mr. W. M. Thomson at the Central Magistracy yesterday morning. Detective-Sergeant Goodwind, appearing for the prosecution, stated that on January 8, defendant came to the complainant's shop at No. 110, Wing Lok Street, and told him that he had a client who wanted to buy the deer horns. As he was known to complainant as a broker, having previously put through some transactions, he was given the deer horns, and a fork was instructed to carry it for him.

On his way to the supposed client, accused stopped at a shop, and, taking the horns from the fork, entered, and passed through the back door. Since then he was not seen again by complainant who reported the matter to the police. Defendant was arrested on Thursday and admitted having sold the horns for $50.

CORRESPONDENCE

"A.N.M." Criticised

(To the Editor, the "Sunday Herald.") Sir,—With reference to the lecture delivered by the Swami Paramananda at the Theosophical Society on January 21, 1935 at 6 p.m. A.N.M.'s remark in "The Passing Hour" column of the Hong Kong Sunday Herald of January 27, 1935 to the effect that "There were no Mahomedans in the audience," I desire to state that several Muslims (wrongly called Mahomedans) were present in the Theosophical Hall, and at the close of the formal proceedings one of them took the opportunity of presenting to the Swami a copy of a very interesting book relating to the subject that he dealt with that evening.

The learned lecturer explained the necessity of cultivating a universal brotherhood and amity among the peoples of different nationalities and religions, and who can appreciate such remarks better than a Muslim?

It is probably not so much the difference of the methods of explaining the Eternal Truth that creates troubles. It is on the contrary and perhaps very often an irresistible desire to prove one's own contention that generates ill-feelings, otherwise what else could have prompted A.N.M. to signal

NEW DANCE TEAM ARRIVES

JANET AND HARLAN

FIRST APPEARANCE LAST NIGHT AT H. K. HOTEL

It is seldom that Hong Kong is favoured with such an excellent dancing display as that given by Janet and Harlan, who made their initial appearance in the Roof Garden of the Hong Kong Hotel last night.

This team is, in the opinion of many who attended the Hotel last night, one of the finest ever to visit Hong Kong. In their various exhibitions they never sacrifice that most essential factor of every kind of dance grace—in an effort to introduce over-elaborate cleverness, and in consequence achieve both grace and cleverness of movement with remarkable ease.

The first item on their programme was a waltz rhapsody, and this, undoubtedly, was the most beautiful dance of the evening. Harlan appeared in white tulle while Janet was exquisitely gowned in a dress to match.

The second item was a modernistic dance after the style of the new German School, and was followed an hour later with an exhibition tango to the strains of "Orchids in the Moonlight."

The fourth and final item was a song by Harlan, while at the same time Janet gave an exhibition of high kicking which could have matched Janet and Harlan came from San Francisco to Shanghai about nine months ago, where they appeared regularly in the ballroom of the Cathay Hotel. They arrived in the Colony on Friday by the Tat-suta Maru. Their first impression was the cleanliness of Hong Kong in comparison with Shanghai.

They intend staying in the Colony for about three weeks and will make welcome appearances during the tea-dances at the Hong Kong Hotel.

FREE FIGHT IN DUDELL ST.

Chinese Plasterers In Court

Five Chinese plasterers, Li Kwan, Yip Hing, Tam Shun, Chau Kuen and Cheng Sau were charged before Mr. W. M. Thomson at the Central Magistracy yesterday morning with causing grievous bodily harm to Kwan Chung, and assaulting Kwan Sing, in Duddell Street on Friday.

Detective-Sergeant Baldwin asked for a remand as the two complainants were still detained in hospital. It was alleged that as a result of a quarrel, a free fight ensued among the labourers who were employed in erecting a building in Duddell Street. Earth trowels were used and the complainants were thus injured.

The case was adjourned for a week.

CHILD PRODIGY OF HONG KONG

Gave Recital Here At Six Years Of Age

NOW, AT 17, PROPOSES TO TOUR FAR EAST

Interesting news comes from Los Angeles, in the shape of a letter from M. Emil Danenberg, now of the city, who spent 25 years in this Colony, taking up his residence in California in 1925. Mr. Danenberg, a graduate of the Leipzig Conservatory of Music, is well-known, both here and in the United States, as a teacher of the piano and a skilled musician. There are probably many residents of Hong Kong who will still remember him.

Infant Prodigy

His letter is mainly concerned with the career of his son, Emil junior, who gave a recital here, under his father's direction, at the age of six, and who amazed his audience by his display of both technique and virtuosity. Other recitals given by the youthful pianist in Manila, Shanghai, Canton, Tokyo, Macao and Hong Kong, from 1924 to 1926, gained him instant recognition as a musical genius.

Promise Fulfilled

The promise that Emil showed as a tiny boy has been amply fulfilled, to judge by the appreciation of a Los Angeles musical critic, who writes:

"I have heard Emil off and on since he first came to Los Angeles some nine years ago, when, at the age of eight, he played concerto after concerto with his father, with perfect ensemble and as much unassuming ease as a kitten with a rubber ball. Now his tone is deeper and his interpretations more thoughtful. His moderns were always evanescently coloured. He memorises almost instantly; practises, I am told, less than an hour each day, and carries on regular high school work at the same time."

Incidentally it may be mentioned that he graduated from the Los Angeles High School on Thursday last.

Maturing Powers

The growth of his powers with the years is evidenced by the opinions of other critics also in New York. The Musical Review, in 1928, states:—"Master Danenberg played Chaminade's Concertstück for piano and orchestra with the skill and thoughtfulness of a veteran," while the Times (New York) writing in 1932 of his performance of the Schumann C. Major Fantaisie, speaks of him as "this boy wonder."

Coming To Hong Kong

Mr. Danenberg Senior, who is justly proud that Emil, who is now nearly 18 and who has had no other teacher than his father, states that the young musician will very shortly start on a tour of the Far East and that Hong Kong music-lovers will be enabled, to judge, at first hand, of the development of his genius.

Mr. Danenberg himself hopes to return to the Colony for a year or two, to meet his old friends and pupils here.

PRESIDENT FOR 45 YEARS

Dr. F. L. Hawks-Pott Of St. John's University

ALMA MATER OF SEVERAL DISTINGUISHED MEN

An interesting visitor to the Colony is Dr. F. L. Hawks-Pott, President of St. John's University, Shanghai, for the past 45 years, who is making a tour of the Alumni Associations of the University and has already visited Foochow, Amoy, Swatow and Canton.

This is by no means the Doctor's first visit to Hong Kong for he has been here 12 times already. He speaks gratefully of the cordial reception that has always been accorded him.

Dr. Hawks-Pott came to China from New York in 1886 at the age of 21 and, although he celebrated his seventieth birthday a year ago, is still looking forward to many more happy years in the East.

Among the many students of St. John's University who have reached eminence in the political world are Mr. T. Y. Soong, former Chinese

What Few Simple Beliefs We Need

Preparing The World For Christ's Coming

Bridging Gulf Between Man And Dog

3—CHRIST AS BROTHER, FRIEND AND EXAMPLE

(By Rev. J. N. Lewis Bryan)

THE story of the human race is the story of a broken friendship, and for the breaking of that friendship, the human race is alone responsible. God's plan was that we should live in the very finest environment it was possible to conceive, in open friendship with Himself. Did He not want to walk and talk in the garden in the cool of the day? Then somehow or another there crept in the fact of sin. He had given to the man whom He had created the gift of free-will, the power to choose between right and wrong, the chance of being friends with Him, or rejecting Him.

If the story of the Garden of Eden is difficult to understand, and you wonder whether it is true or not, do not worry about it. It is not of any vital importance. What is important is, that at some time or other, man misused his gift of freedom, and from that moment God's plan was smashed.

But every commander should have an alternative plan ready to put into operation if the original one happens to break down. So it was with God. He was not vindictive; He did not say that He would have no more to do with us. Instead He started off again in an entirely new direction. He decided to win us back to Himself by the power of love, to send us the One Whom He most dearly loved, in the person of His Son, to see what He could do.

Preparing For His Coming

But this could not happen in a moment. The world had to be made ready for His coming, and so, in the Old Testament we have the story, (in part) of how He set about that stupendous task. It started on the day when Abraham was ordered to separate himself from the "civilised life" of his day, and set up his tents under the open sky. From that moment the age-long training of the Jewish race began. The question is often asked—Why was Christ born a Jew? The answer is that it was part of the plan. The little race secluded in the hills of Palestine, the descendants of Abraham, were chosen out from the other races to be the holders of the Oracles of God, and all through the sacred writings of priests and prophets there ran the golden thread of a promise—that some day there was to come One who was to be the great Deliverer.

We saw in a previous article of this series how the idea of God was inculcated into human consciousness, by gradual revelation, and how the Old Testament closes with the whole Jewish race on the tip-toe of expectation. In the meantime, however, two other great races were doing their share of the great preparation, although they did not know it. The Romans were paving the way, with the "Pax Romana," and the provision of roads across the world, on which in later years, St. Paul was to travel in peace and security, carrying the first news of the Gospel.

How Greece Helped

The other great nation in the world at that time that was also

Finance Minister, Dr. Alfred S. K. Sze, Chinese Minister to Washington, and Dr. Wellington Koo, Chinese Minister to France. Dr. Hawks-Pott yesterday morning met a number of his friends and old students in the lounge of the Hong Kong Hotel. He will also call on Sir William Hornell, whom he has known for many years. The Doctor will give an address in the Union Assembly Hall of the Hong Kong University on Tuesday at 8 p.m.

He is returning to Shanghai by the Blue Funnel liner Aeneas on Wednesday.

playing an unconscious part, was Greece. Greece supplied the language. The little tribes and nations along the Mediterranean seaboard quite naturally all spoke different languages. Gradually they began to learn Greek and it became the recognised language of trade and commerce. By the time St. Paul began his journeys, he was able to find in every town and city a great number of people by whom he could make himself perfectly understood.

Not only that, but everywhere he found a Synagogue of the Jews, who had settled down in commercial pursuits. To them he was able to say that the One whom they had expected had come, and on that fact to base his message. It is a very significant thing, too, that the incarnation should have happened when it did, for at that moment the whole world was in the depths of despair. As one of the old writers put it, "The heaven is empty of the gods." Humanity did not know where to turn. They had found out the utter hopelessness of the gods whom they had worshipped. Religion was at a standstill.

So we come to the dawn of Christmas Day, when the Christ of the Eternities became the Jesus of human experience. Here at once we come up against the difficulties which surround the Virgin Birth. Books have been written about it. Learned theologians have argued about it, but we need not let it bother us here. What matters is His life and death. On a point of fact it is not unreasonable to deduce some remarkable beginnings from these subsequent happenings.

Record Of His Birth

The record could only have come to us from Mary herself, as told by her in later years, and doubts about it never seemed to have troubled the Apostles. His birth was the first thing in order of time and the last thing in order of apprehension. Anyway it was God's plan, and let us leave it to Him. If His Son was to become Man, and pass through man's experience, no other way was possible, or, right from the very start, He would have been different from the rest of us.

Very roughly and briefly, He came for three purposes:

1. To show us how life could really be lived.
2. To show us the Heart of the Father.
3. To pay once for all the price of sin, and bridge over the gulf that sin had made between man and God.

We have very little record of His early days in the home at Nazareth. It was that of a village carpenter; simple, plain and wholesome. We are told that He was "subject to His parents," and right at the very start, we have Him for an example.

Early Influences

The influence of those early years played a great part in the moulding of His life. It was from His experience of what His earthly father had been, that He gave us the term "Father," as applied to God. And it speaks volumes for the character of that kindly man Joseph. When the day's work was done, one can picture them going off for walks in the hills, and studying the wonders of Nature, about which, later, He was to speak so much, or watching His father in the workshop, and getting from him His first lessons in carpentering.

Again and again in His parables, He must have been thinking of scenes in His childhood—the mixing of the heaven, as He had seen His Mother do it, or the day when She was mending his clothes, and she explained that "one could not put a piece of new cloth on an old garment."

There for this week we will leave Him; leading the ordinary life of a boy of His day, before the years of responsibility came and He went out to find His destiny.

MR. CORDELL HULL REPLIES

Washington, Yesterday.

President Roosevelt stated today at a press conference that he had heard nothing of the new world economic conference suggested by Mr. Cordell Hull, the State Secretary, yesterday.

Mr. Hull agreed subsequently that it would be a good thing if President Roosevelt's disclaimer were taken to mean that he intends to proceed with international trade negotiations and tariff bargaining with individual nations.—Reuter.

UNACCEPTABLE TO ORGANISED LABOUR

Washington, Yesterday.

Mr. William Green, President of the Federation of Labour, announced today that organised labour would not accept the extended automobile Code.

Addressing the Senate sub-committee, Mr. Green asserted that the Code had absolutely failed to spread work because the workers completed the work in almost unlimited hours at the discretion of the automobile makers.

He added, "we will not accept or recognise the Code and will not yield on it."—Reuter.

TRAMP SHIPPING SUBSIDY

Bill's Third Reading In Commons

OVERCOMING PERILS IN EVENT OF WAR

London, Yesterday.

The House of Commons yesterday passed the third reading of the Government Bill to assist, by way of subsidy, the owners of British tramp ships to meet the competition of foreign subsidised vessels and to provide for the assistance, by loans on special terms, to the British shipowners to improve their merchant fleets.

The President of the Board of Trade, Mr. Walter Runciman, said that the Government hoped that the steps

NEW DOLLAR
DIRECTORY

1935 Edition Issued

CAREFULLY REVISED, WITH MANY IMPROVEMENTS

The new Hong Kong Dollar Directory, published by The Hong Kong Dollar Directory Co., should prove itself an extremely useful volume to the public from what I have seen of it.

It is more than a mere directory: it is a kind of local "Whitaker," containing an immense amount of useful information about the Colony. Beginning with English and Chinese calendars for the year, it proceeds with a population table and a short history of Hong Kong. Currency, public and general holidays follow, with an extremely full illustrated list of the new storm-signals and time-signals, both local and non-local. Next come time tables of the bus, tramway and ferry services of Hong Kong and Kowloon, followed by the Customs tariff of the port and a mine of postal information, including air-mail services.

Next comes a remarkably full list of documentary stamp duties, with exemptions, the legalised tariffs for taxis, rickshaws and sedan chairs, and a resume of the traffic regulations now in force, followed by tables of English, Chinese and Japanese weights and measures, comparative times at various points of the world, and concluding with a useful interest table.

The remainder of the Directory is arranged as in former years, but brightened by the insertion of full-page advertisements on coloured paper. Another innovation that will assuredly be appreciated by the public is the substitution of stiff cardboard covers for the somewhat flimsy paper ones with which previous editions were provided.

Lacuna there are bound to be in the Directory of a town containing a large number of residents who are periodically absent on leave, not to mention those who always forget to furnish particulars of themselves, no matter how many requests and reminders are sent them; but the publishers can rest assured that they have this year been more successful in obtaining the desired details than ever before.

Altogether a most praiseworthy effort.

LEPROSY EXPERT
IN COLONYDR. BERNHARDT NOCHT
OF HAMBURG

An interesting visitor to the Colony at the present time is Professor Dr. Bernhardt Nocht, of Hamburg, one of the world's foremost authorities on tropical diseases, medicine and hygiene.

Dr. Nocht is the founder of the Hamburg Institute of Tropical Diseases and was its Director for 30 years. This Institute is carried on in connection with the University of Hamburg, of which the Professor was at one time Rector and Dean of the Medical Faculty.

When the League of Nations formed its Health Committee in 1922 Dr. Nocht was invited to represent Germany in a private capacity; but when Germany entered the League his post became an official one, the President of the General Health Council being nominated as his colleague. This connection came to an end with Germany's withdrawal from the League three years later.

While acting as the representative of the Health Committee of the League Dr. Nocht made several journeys, as a member of the Malaria Commission, to south and south-eastern Europe, the Balkans, Spain, Russia and Palestine. In 1930 he was appointed President of the International Leprosy Commission and visited Bangkok to attend a conference with the Far Eastern Association of Tropical Medicine, and as delegate of the Health Committee visited Manila, to attend the Leonard Wood Memorial Conference, in 1931.

Activities in Brazil

Later he represented the League in transactions with the Brazilian Government in connection with the proposed establishment of a South American Institute for the study of leprosy, under the aegis of the League of Nations, but to be staffed by Brazilians. This project fell through at the time, it being found impossible to raise the necessary funds.

Dr. Nocht, who is 77 years of age, retired from active work about four years ago. His present voyage to the Far East is of a purely private nature and for the purpose of visiting his son, Mr. Helmut Nocht, of St. George's Building; but, as with Job's war-horse, that smelteth the battle afar off, his old love, leprosy research, tempted him to break his journey at Manila, where he indicated a new line of research in this direction.

While in Hong Kong he has consented, in response to many pressing requests, to address the Medical Society of the Hong Kong University.

PROF. DR. BERNHARDT NOCHT.

city, his lecture being arranged for Wednesday next. Shortly afterwards he leaves for Shanghai, where he has promised to lecture at the Tung Choo University; after which he returns to Manila, where he will stay for some weeks, in connection with the leprosy studies initiated on his way out, before returning to his home in Germany.

L. C. Tatham

His Excellency the Governor has been pleased to approve of the grant of a Commission to Mr. Leonard Charles Tatham as Lieutenant for service with the Construction Section of the Railway Operating Detachment Cadre of the Hong Kong Volunteer Defence Corps, with effect from January 17, 1935.

The name of Mr. John Archibald Ritchie, has been added to the list of authorised architects.

ROMANCE OF ROAD
AND AIR

Appeal Court Victory
The Board took over his coach services between Bow and Romford, Bow and Brentford, and Aldgate East and Uxminster.

The firm continued to operate long-distance coaches, however, and Mr. Hillman's fighting spirit was demonstrated when, in 1933, the Minister of Transport ordered the Traffic Commissioners to revoke the licences of the Uxminster coaches. He carried the battle to the Court of Appeal, and, although it cost him £3,000, he was successful in the end. Mr. Hillman decided that if he could not do all he desired on the road he would take to the air. In that way he entered commercial aviation. A Puss Moth purchased in 1931 from the De Havilland Co. was his first machine, and he used it for conveying passengers to and from places like Clacton and Southend on journeys for which previously he had relied on road vehicles.

Qualified As Pilot
He was over 40, but he qualified as a pilot. Then he began to add to the number of his machines and to introduce air services as regular as those he had run on the roads. He had a clear idea of what he wanted in the way of efficient and comfortable passenger aircraft, and he had them built to his order.

It was to further his idea that Essex should have its own airport that he persuaded the then Lord Mayor of London and the Sheriff to fly to his Romford aerodrome.

In this, as in other ventures, he pursued his aims with intense and characteristic thoroughness.

The Hong Kong Philharmonic Society announces that the first performance of "Hawatha" will be on Thursday, March 7 (not on Friday, March 8 as previously stated), the second performance being on Saturday, the 9th. There will not be any rehearsal of "Hawatha" by the Philharmonic Society to-morrow, owing to the Chinese New Year.

TWO ESTONIAN
STOWAWAYSKept Aboard Ship And Made To WorkTWO WEEKS' GAOL ON ARRIVAL HERE

Two 20-year-old unemployed Estonians, Bernhard Matich and Richard Jalakers, were yesterday sentenced to 14 days' imprisonment when they appeared before Mr. E. W. Hamilton at the Kowloon Magistracy charged with stowing away on board the s.s. Nall Sea Moor, a ship chartered by Gibb Livingston and Company, from Genoa.

Mr. E. J. Edmonds, the chief officer, appeared for the complainants, and stated that the defendants gave themselves up at Port Said, but were not allowed to go ashore and were made to work aboard the ship. As Hong Kong was the first British port at which the ship called they were kept aboard until their arrival in Hong Kong yesterday.

In sentencing the defendants Mr. Hamilton stated that after they had finished their sentence they would go to the remand home until a ship of the same company would be able to take them back home.

MARCH 28 ARRANGED

By kind permission of the Very Rev. Dean Swann, Mendelssohn's oratorio "Elijah" is to be performed in St. John's Cathedral by the Hong Kong Singers, newly augmented, as announced in these columns last Sunday. The date has now been fixed for Thursday, March 28.

Rehearsals are now in full swing and newcomers are joining the choir each week. There is still room, however, for a few more sopranos and tenors. Intending applicants are asked to communicate as soon as possible with the Hon. Secretary, Mr. T. E. Jackson, No. 9 Homuntin Hill, Kowloon (Tel. 50403) in order to avoid disappointment.

According to the passenger list of the s.s. Naldera, Mr. A. Chapman was reported in our issue of last week as having sailed by this steamer. We understand Mr. Chapman is still resident in the Colony.

SHANGHAI PLAYERS OPTIMISTIC IF GROUND IS ON HARD SIDE

Shanghai Hockey Team Not Sensational Four Local Players Shine In Opening Games

The left wing is the real danger in the visitors' forward line. Miss Raeburn's stickwork is as good as many men left-wingers in the Colony, and she has a fine burst of speed to thrust home her advantage. She combines perfectly with Miss A. Collico, who is a fast-moving inside-forward with the interests of her winger at heart.

Constructive Leader

Miss Eardley is a constructive leader with a fine sense of distribution. She, however, lacks that sense of when to break through herself. The right-wing combination is fast, with Miss Nichols a very dangerous player inside the circle.

The forwards showed good combination in the second half when they played the long-passing game with satisfactory results in approach, but the manoeuvre was discounted inside the circle by an inability to shoot.

Among the spectators were Mrs. T. E. Pearce, President of the Ladies' Hockey Association, and Miss J. Dalziel, former skipper of the Hong Kong Ladies who has just returned from leave.

Four Local Stars

The Hong Kong Ladies had four players very much in the limelight.

UNITED BEAT CORNWALL IN MAMAK GAME

Sailors Outplayed By Ten Men CASSEY SCORES THREE

Playing with only 10 men, the right-wing being absent, the United Hockey Club defeated the Cornwall by four clear goals in a very scrappy Mamak Hockey Tournament match at Happy Valley yesterday. The score at half-time was one-nil.

The United, although one short, were by far the superior team in both speed and team-work, but on occasion the Naval defence shone.

R. C. Reed, the United left-half was the most outstanding player on the field. He played a very steady game and was never beaten. Time and again he would gather the ball in his own goal-mouth and would take it down to the twenty five yard line at the other end of the field before passing neatly to one of his forwards. He checked most of the Naval attacks and fed the forwards with numerous well-placed passes.

Centre Forward Erratic

Winch, the winners' leader, also played a strong game, but was inclined to be erratic when in the circle. He, however, led the forwards in many fine movements. He was very well supported by Cassey, Court, and Mueller, the remaining forwards, though the latter was inclined to keep too far up the field and was often pulled up for offside.

Both Cassey and Court, the inside forwards, were fast in attack and neat in their stickwork.

Jones, the centre-half, played a very sound defensive game, but was often out of position when in attack. He was well supported by Nabl, on his right, and Reed, on his left.

Bezeley, centre-half, and Halliwell, left-back, were the only players for the losers to display any form at all.

It was not until after 20 minutes that the United opened the scoring when Court gathered the ball at the twenty five yard line and ran in, beating the backs, to scoop the ball past the goal-keeper.

Three More Goals

After the interval it did not take the United long to get back to form and Cassey netted the second goal from the circle's edge within the first few minutes of the commencement. Ten minutes later Mueller scored with a well-placed drive from a difficult angle.

The final goal was scored, through Cassey, with only a few minutes to play.

Cornwall: Bolton; Hawkins and Halliwell; Barton, Bezeley and Heath; Annetts, Elsey, Edmonds, Gilard and Hulme.

United: Khan; Naidu and Gubbay; Nabl, Jones, and Reed; Cassey, Winch, Court and Mueller.

MOELLER SCORES THREE

Y.M.C.A. Beat Duncan In Friendly Game

The Y.M.C.A. defeated H.M.S. Duncan by 5 goals to 1 yesterday afternoon in a friendly hockey match at King's Park. The "Y" scored their first three goals in the opening half, while H.M.S. Duncan replied in the middle of the second half.

Moeller (3), S. Fowler and Farmer scored for the "Y" and Dicks replied for the sailors.

Y.M.C.A.—A. H. Moss; A. Henry and G. Farmer; H. Lange, R. Eates and E. Fowler; D. Muir, S. Fowler, W. Brown, H. P. Moeller and C. Balmann.

H.M.S. Duncan—A. B. Whitford; L. Wilson and A. B. Bishop; A. B. Twyman, A. B. Lamb and A. B. Sym; A. B. Smith, Lt. Clark, A. B. Hurry, A. B. Buckley and A. D. Dicks.

PEN SKETCHES OF SHANGHAI XI

LEE NING, the Shanghai left full-back, is making his second appearance in the Colony as an Interporter. He learned how to play soccer while at the Swatow Academy in 1925 where he represented the School for two seasons. In the latter part of 1927 he left Swatow to continue his studies at the University of Shanghai and captained their first eleven for three seasons.

At the same time he joined the Loh Hwa football Club and played intermittently for them and the "Varsity". When the Loh Hwa Club was dissolved and the Tung Hwa formed, Lee joined the new Club and has played for them ever since.

H. P. MADAR is a Shanghai Public School boy and is a brother of Pat Madar, the Interporter cricketer. He played for the School in all three divisions of the Inter-School soccer competition against St. Xavier's School, and on leaving School, joined the Public School's Old Boys' team which did extremely well while it lasted, winning the Shanghai Senior League and the Skottow Cup once.

When the School team was dissolved, Madar joined the Shanghai Recreation Club, known as the "Rees", for whom he played at "inside-right, right-half—he will probably be playing at left-half to-morrow. This is his first Interporter.

C. REMEDIOS, the Shanghai skipper and centre-half, is well-known to Hong Kong soccer fans as he has already represented the Colony on three occasions against Shanghai. He first visited the Colony as an Interporter in the 1930-31 season and again in the 1933-34 season, when he played at left-half. He has played for the A.S.F. since his arrival in Shanghai.

N. Z. LEE who plays for the Tung Hwa Club in Shanghai is making his first appearance as an Interporter, although he has taken part in several trials. He is a useful member of the team.

H. P. CHEN, an inside-left, was brought down as one of the reserves and is a very fast man. A member of the Tung Hwa Football Club, Chen first took up soccer with the Ling Nam Football Club as inside-left, but became a right-half when he joined the Tung Hwa Club. This is his first Interporter.

A. SYMONS is another Shanghai Public School boy, and, like Madar, played for the School's Old Boys' team before joining the "Rees". This is his first Interporter.

R. FAVACHO is an old campaigner and has several Interporter "caps." He first played soccer at St. Joan of Arc's College in Bangkok, Siam, as a right-winger, which position he has held throughout his soccer career. From Siam, Favacho went to the St. Xavier's College in Shanghai where he played in the senior team for two years, during which he obtained his first Interporter "cap" against the Colony. On leaving St. Xavier's College he joined the Club de Lusitano and remained with them for two years, taking part in the Portuguese Interporter against Hong Kong. He is now a member of the A. S. F. and is the oldest Interporter in the team. He has played against the Colony on four occasions, two of which games were in Shanghai.

H. COLLACO, an inside-right, is another old campaigner and first represented Shanghai against the Colony in 1925 and again in 1930. He has played for the Club de Lusitano from the time of his first Interporter and has captained the side for the past three years. His wife is a member of the Shanghai Ladies' Interporter hockey eleven.

A. BOISSEREE, one of the youngest members of the team is a very good inside-left and first played serious soccer for the St. Xavier's College in Shanghai. On leaving School in 1931, Boisserée joined the Shanghai Recreation Club as an inside-left and has been with them ever since. This is his second Interporter, having visited the Colony with the victorious team in January of 1933-34 season.

L. GREENBERG, another former Shanghai Public Schoolboy first played in the Inter-School series and for the Public School's Old Boys' team. After that team had been dissolved, he turned his attention to hockey and played for the United, gaining an Interporter "cap" against Hankow. Last year he played for the Jewish Recreation Club when they won the Second Division title, the

VERY LIGHT TEAM

HANDICAPPED BY 3 EARLY SETBACKS

COLLET JOINS FRENCH ARMY

Three Players From Public School

Mr. J. Watson, the team's trainer and manager, interviewed soon after the Empress of Canada had docked yesterday, said: The team is on the very light side and will not be selected until the day of the match.

Asked what the probable composition of the team would be, Mr. C. Remedios, said that Ward, a young, but very good, goal-keeper, would be between the sticks, while the choice of the two full-backs would fall between Shute, Marcal and Lee, while the halves would definitely be Symons, one of our lightest men, myself, and H. Madar.

The forwards will be selected from L. Greenberg, Boisserée, N. Z. Lee, Collaco, Favacho and H. P. Chen.

Collaco is making his third Interporter visit to the Colony, having played in his first Interporter in 1925 and his second in 1931. He is the present captain of the Club Lusitano, leaders in the Shanghai Second Division.

Mr. Watson, commenting upon several members of the team, said that Ward, their custodian, was making his first visit to the Colony and was very good.

THREE SETBACKS They had great difficulty in picking a team and at the last moment Suen Kam Shun, S. H. Van, and Lai were unable to come.

"We were lucky enough to have found very capable substitutes in L. Greenberg and Collaco."

"We had a very good trip and the team are in good fettle, having had plenty of exercise on board. We hope to have a work-out this afternoon on the ground on which we are supposed to play the match, if this is possible," said Mr. Watson.

Interviewed, several members of the team were very optimistic regarding their chances and expressed the opinion that, providing they played on a hard ground, they would do well.

THREE FROM PUBLIC SCHOOL Three members of the Interporter team are former pupils of the Shanghai Public School, which has produced most of Shanghai's soccer Interporters. They are H. Madar, the left-half, Symons the pivot, and L. Greenberg, the outside-left.

Boisserée, Lee Ning, and Remedios visited Hong Kong with the victorious Shanghai Interporter team of January 1933, when Shanghai won in the last minutes of the game by a goal through Collet.

Collet, who is one of the most dashing of Shanghai centre-forwards, was unfortunately prevented from taking part in the Interporter trials owing to duty, having enlisted with the French Army in Shanghai.

TEAM DETAILS The following are members of the Shanghai Interporter Football team with their respective weights and heights:—

W. Ward (goal) 169 lb. 6.0 ft. 6 in.

KWOK CHUNG-HANG WINS AGAIN

Breast-Stroke Handicap At Bendigo

Melbourne, Jan. 28. Another victory has been registered by Kwok Chung-hang, the Hong Kong Chinese swimming star.

Starting from scratch in a 100 yards handicap breast-stroke event at Bendigo yesterday, the Chinese star won easily.

Yesterday's victory was the third in a row for Kwok. Previously he had won the Victorian 100-yards breast-stroke championship and the Centenary 100 metres breast-stroke title.

ENGINEER ROBBED IN QUEEN'S ROAD

41 Travellers' Cheques Stolen

MAN AND WOMAN CHARGED

A European engineer appeared as the complainant against Li Kuen, a 22-year-old Chinese woman, and Lee Chang King, an unemployed, who were charged with the theft and receiving of 41 Thomas Cook and Son's travellers' cheques, and the receiving of one travellers' cheque, respectively, before Mr. W. M. Thomson at the Central Magistrate's Court yesterday morning.

It was alleged that complainant, having the book of cheques in his possession, visited the first defendant on Wednesday night. The next morning, on his return to the hotel where he resided, he found the book of cheques missing. He informed the local branch of Messrs. Thomas Cook, Limited, and reported the matter to the police.

On Friday morning the second defendant presented one of the cheques for payment and was arrested. On his information the first accused was located at No. 163, Queen's Road Central.

After hearing the evidence of complainant the magistrate remanded the case until Wednesday afternoon.

The forthcoming marriage is announced between Mr. Leigh Reavley Cramer, banker of No. 1 Catham Road, Hong Kong, and Miss Margaret Schwald of No. 5630 Brookside Boulevard, Kansas City, Missouri, U.S.A.

PLEA TO SUSPEND QUOTA SYSTEM ON JAPANESE TEXTILES

Ceylon's Plight During Devastating
Malaria Epidemic

Colombo, yesterday.
The Ceylon State Council has passed a resolution asking the Colonial Secretary to suspend the operation of the quota system on Japanese textiles in view of the grave hardships caused by the malaria epidemic.

THE PASSING HOUR

The first was the crusade against the "Chain-gang." The horrible fate of being chained to a company of degraded negroes, driven under the lash and punished by confinement in the sweat-room were harrowing enough in all conscience, but merely frightened the public away from looking at such outrages unrelieved by any gripping plot; the moral drawn was that a Government that could tolerate such things must be totally lacking in humanity. The Gangster films were always subject to the suspicion that perhaps we were supposed to admire the villain as an adventurer; but in the end they roused the law-abiding citizen to abolish the gangster.

DOES THE WORLD MOVE ON?

THE film we have all been to see this last week is not on the old lines of the "anti-war" films. They had their own usefulness in familiarising a new generation with some of the external uglinesses of mechanical slaughter, though no film that reproduced the mutilations and agonies of the real thing could either be produced or exhibited. Perhaps curiosity was more appealed to than pity or hatred. At any rate there is little indication that the frontal assault has been effective; and attention has now been diverted to a search for the reasons of the repulse. "The world move on" is an advocacy of the plan that has come to be known as "taking the profit out of war." Of the greater calamities that befall a nation the two most prominent are conquest in war and bankruptcy, and the recent French war-code is aimed at preventing the latter disaster from being the necessary sequel to any war, whether successful or unsuccessful; and also incidentally removing from possible profiteers the temptation to start Jingo slogans and defeatist conciliation. Whether the object was made clear is a question of construction. Some people think that for a wife to refuse to make munitions when her husband is at the front is a disloyalty to him as well as to the State. Most likely it is impossible to swim against the current once a war has begun. The proper time to foresee and prevent profiteering is in the halcyon days of peace. At any rate a propagandist film that sets people discussing and thinking has fulfilled its purpose.

STOWAWAY GAOLED

Pleading that he had been deported from America to Hong Kong, and that he was put ashore at Shanghai, She Tai-san, alias Joe Cheng, a 33-year-old unemployed, was sentenced to six weeks' hard labour when he appeared before Mr. E. W. Hamilton at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday, charged with stowing away on the s.s. President Johnson from Shanghai.

The forthcoming marriage is announced between Mr. Richard Franklin Hendrik, of No. 25, Nathan Road, Kowloon and Miss Natalia Montgomery of No. 62, Queen's Road Central, Hong Kong.

DRAMA SHOULD BE SCHOOL-TAUGHT

CHINESE LITERATURE'S DRAMATIC APPEAL

Rhythm Both In Words And Sentences

(By Phyllis Juby)

ONLY when we have power of expression do we feel a master. For many the world is a place of mediocrity because they have no power to express themselves in any but stereotyped ways. It is in gestures and acting that the child draws out his individual riches and doubles his personality. His thoughts have to force their way into something new and find a power of expression—expression that will draw the reaction he desires from others. And as he grows he will search more earnestly for the exact word to fit his thought. It is the fight for intellectual expression and control that moulds the character.

Chinese literature has a great dramatic appeal. It is meant to be changed—a natural beginning of drama. In our literature we express ideas singly, one by one, and exercise our power of analysis; the Chinese emphasis is on the senses, the sound and symbol of the word. We carry the thought by reason; the Chinese carry it by the force of the word. To understand Chinese literature, it is necessary for the voice to find the movement of the sentence; to know the punctuation, which gives the rhythm. Even in their historical records there is no exaltation as we know it, but it teaches the science of attitude.

Power Of The Word

The word in Chinese has a great active force that must be expressed. The language has not been organised to denote concepts, to analyse ideas, or to disclose doctrines; it has been modelled only to communicate emotional attitudes, to suggest ways of conduct; to convince. The Chinese have succeeded in keeping the emblematic value of words and sentences entirely concrete. It is left to the rhythm alone to organise the expression of the thought; hence the great dramatic appeal of the language.

Foreign literature would have a far greater appeal to the Chinese if their love and feeling for gesture were taken into account. Each Chinese word is so well attached to the thought that it creates its own world of images. There is a magic life in their words that ours have come to lack. Surely it could come again to the child in association with drama.

Children's Sense Of Drama

The young child can create his own drama. In a scene from "All Baba and the Forty Thieves" he will create his own words and expression for the picture of the story he has in his mind. He will learn the value of association and combination in finding the word and forming the sentence to draw reaction from others. He will feel power and fulness in creation. Drama is creation in action; the child himself is living his creator. And after the expansion and enrichment of the individual comes judgment. Such a child will be more apt to judge and compare.

In a Chinese school where the child must be bilingual, there should be no walls between the two literatures. The child led to see analogies in both literatures will begin to lose that sense of difference the grown-up still has. The European literature that is analogous with the Chinese should be lived in acting. There are many comparisons for the teacher to draw.

A Literary Comparison

Here is an extract from the San Kuo, telling of the mighty General Ts'ao Ts'ao's death:

"That night Ts'ao Ts'ao became worse. As he lay on his couch he felt dizzy and could not see, so he rose and sat by a table, upon which he leaned. It seemed to him that someone shrieked, and, peering into the darkness, he perceived the forms of many of his victims. All were bloodstained. They stood in the obscurity and whispered, demanding his life. He rose, lifted his sword and threw it wildly into the air. Just then there was a loud crash, and the south-west corner of the new building came down. And Ts'ao Ts'ao fell with it. His attendants raised him and bore him to another place where he might lie in peace."

And here is an extract from "Macbeth":
Macb. "Blood hath been shed ere now, I' the olden time,
Ere human statute purg'd the gentle weal;
Ay, and since too, murders have been perform'd
Too terrible for the ear. The time has been
That, when the brains were out,
The man would die,
And there an end; but now they rise again,
With twenty mortal murders on their crowns,
And push us from our stools:
This is more strange
Than such a murder is."

Freedom And Growth
The student, having gone on these parallel lines, must find analogies for himself; if not in characters, then in atmosphere. Both literatures are full of fancies; Coleridge and Li Po might well be mentioned in the same breath. A comparative study of Grecian and Chinese mythology could be in itself "a small, sweet world of wave-compassing wonder."

In such a programme children would gain a sense of freedom and development. Some strong individuals have expressed themselves in China, as in "The Dream of the Red Chamber" and "Strange Stories from a Chinese Studio," and have been recognised at once. Although there is that strong Chinese love of tradition, the people are alive to youth and freshness in ideas. A progressive China can only be born in the schools where the child is helped to extend his vision and amplify his sense of humanity. He will find control in unity, and realize that "all men are brothers."

CRUELTY TO CAT

European Ladies To Rescue

A case of extreme cruelty to animals was witnessed at about 11 o'clock yesterday morning when a young Chinese boy was seen dragging a cat along Queen's Road by means of a string wound tightly around its neck.

Two European women, who attempted to set the poor animal free, very narrowly escaped being severely bitten by the cat which was almost mad with pain.

One of the ladies at last liberated the cat, but in the meantime the boy had vanished.

JUNIOR SOCCER

Moss, who is a Devon County player, showed brilliant form, and is undoubtedly the ideal substitute for Went, who leaves the Colony shortly. His crisp tackling, clever headwork, and well-placed clearances were a tower of strength in the Navy defence, and the Athletic forwards found it impossible to evade him.

Bright Prominent

The halves, of whom Bright was easily the most outstanding, gave a splendid display of combined attacking movements with their forwards, and kept the attack moving with accurate, first-time passes.

Bright, opposing a fast and clever right wing, proved a definite barrier to Lai Wah-tai and Chow Yim-chung, and nipped their schemes in the bud with prompt tackling and sound marking. His delightful ground passes to Adams, made that winger the most dangerous forward on the field. This was Bright's last appearance in Colony football, and it will be difficult to find so able a left-half to take his place in the team.

White put in a lot of good work, and fitted in well with Males and Dadds. The forwards, as a line, were combined and fast, and gave in the centre, proved a worthy leader. Dadds was always a danger to the Athletic goal, and sent over some splendid passes, as did Adams on the left. The inside men made full use of their chances, and showed splendid understanding with the other forwards.

Chinese Forwards Shacked

The Athletic forwards were seldom allowed to penetrate the Navy danger zone, though Lai Wah-tai and Chow Yim-chung were very fast and hard to rob when in possession. The halves did not give all the support they might have to the forwards, and their passing was far from being as accurate as usual. Lau Tai-so, in the pivotal position, gave a sound display, and managed to get his forwards away at times with some good passes.

The defence was fairly safe, Li Kwok-ki, in goal, playing extremely well and making many fine saves. Chan Chung-yin was the better of the two backs, his tackling being clean and quick.

Two Quick Goals

The Navy opened with a rush, scoring two quick goals in the first few minutes. After a melee in the Athletic goalmouth, the Navy were awarded a penalty for a foul, and Dadds easily converted. A corner taken by Dadds was headed in by Bright, but Li effected a smart clearance on the line. Continuing to press, the Navy went further ahead, when O'Donnell ran through and netted with a fast rising shot.

Just before the interval, the Athletic broke away on the right, catching the Navy defence unawares, and Lo Wal-keun ran through and coolly lobbed over McSweeney's head into the net. The sailors quickly retaliated, and following a brilliant run by Dadds, Glass took the centre in his stride, to crash the ball past Li from 5 yards.

McSweeney's Good Save

In the second half, the exchanges were of a more even nature, but the Athletic could not increase their score. The Navy went further ahead when Glass ran clean through the Chinese defence and bundled the ball into the net.

A free kick against McSweeney for carrying was nearly converted by Lo Wal-keun, the "keeper" making a splendid full-length save on the line.

POLICE UNLUCKY TO LOSE

Fusiliers Score Decider Just On Time

A very lucky goal scored a minute from time gave the Fusiliers victory over the Police in their Third Division soccer encounter at Sookunpoo yesterday, the soldiers winning by the odd goal in three.

The first goal was scored after 20 minutes Chan Chu dribbling through to beat both Smith and Williams and place a neat shot well beyond Wilkins' reach. Both teams continued to play hard but no further goals were registered before half time.

The second goal was scored five minutes after the interval, SINGLETON equalising for the Fusiliers when he received the ball two yards out. The winning goal, scored just on time, was an unfortunate one for the Police. The ball was going over the dead ball line when Singleton darted in to shoot diagonally across the goalmouth, the ball bounding off Wong Man-kwai into the net.

Police Forwards Superior
The Police forwards were far better than the soldiers, but they were weaker in the defence. Lo Lai Yun saved some excellent shots but Yip Lai Ye was not at all safe, mistaking frequently.

The Fusilier forwards were very slow and failed to take opportunities, their defence was very sound, but Jones, at left-half, was too fond of exhibiting his tricky footwork; he manoeuvred successfully occasionally, but more frequently than not, his dallying with the ball cost his side golden chances.

Fusiliers—Wilkins; Smith, Williams; Peckham Jones, Davies; Connor, Cornhill, Singleton, Tatler and Fisher. Police—Lo Lai Yun; Yip Lai Ye, Wong Man Kwai; Woo Po, Wong San, Yeung Sam; Cheung Kah, Wong On, Chan Chu, Leung Kong Lau and Konh Hing.

AIR FORCE DRAW WITH RECREIO

Brixton Injured But Side Improve

SECOND-HALF SUPERIORITY

In the Third Division soccer encounter yesterday between the Recreation and the Air Force at King's Park the points were shared each team netting twice.

In the first 10 minutes the Recreation literally penned the Airman in their own half, but after that the game opened out, and following a fine run down the wing by Thompson, Hubbard took the ball and with a first-time shot sent it to the top left hand corner of the net well out of the reach of Fernandes. The Recreation did not allow much grass to grow before equalising, for, from a line centre from D'Aguiro, Santos received the ball and gave Mead no chance.

From the kick off the Air Force then exploited the off-side game, but this was there undoing, as, despite their appeals, Campos went through and netted the ball for the referee to allow the goal. A few minutes later Brixton was forced to leave the field after colliding with Alves, and from this point the Air Force played with only 10 men.

Brixton's Loss A Tonic
Paradoxically, their play improved after Brixton was carried off, and with Beauchamp and Gregory lying on the half-way line, they practically assumed control of the game.

It was not surprising, therefore, when, after a fine pass forward by Turnock, Ewart secured and scored the equaliser. His first shot was blocked by Fernandes, but, following it up, he caught it on the rebound and made no mistake with the next attempt. On the run of the play in the first half the Air Force were lucky to have kept down the score to two, for all five of the Recreation forwards were a source of anxiety to the defence, but in the second half they well deserved the goal that enabled them to share the points.

Silva, Maher and the three halves played an excellent game as long as their energy lasted, but when they tired the three Air Force forwards, with Walsh as a rover, overran them.

FUSILIERS RUN RIOT

Fusiliers custodian, had only two shots during the game, one in each half from free kicks taken by Ng Ying-kee. McHugh worked untiringly throughout, and inflated most of the openings from which goals resulted.

With the sole exception of Kwok Ying-wai, the Eastern forwards were slow and showed not the slightest idea of ball control. Kwok made several desperate efforts to break through, but, with no support, could make little headway. Ng Ying-kee showed glimpses of form, but lack of support again, gave him no opportunity of opening the game out. The defence played very confidently in the first 20 minutes, when Ng Chi-nau made many splendid saves, but once the Fusiliers had opened the scoring, the backs fell away, and provided no obstacle to their opponents.

Bumster (3) Evans (2), Coakley (2), McHugh, and Parry scored for the Fusiliers.

Fusiliers—Saunders; Davies, Galley; Edge, McHugh, Jones; Parry, Bumster, Coakley, Evans and Cressy. Eastern—Ng Chi-nau; Lai Tin-choi, Lau Kim-tai, Chai Yau-tek, Ng Ying-kee, Fung Yau-wai, Lai Ping-tung, Kwok Ying-wai, Fung Chai-po, Sing Ling-sing and Wong Sul-tay.

BERWICK'S FIRST DANCE

200 Attend Pleasing Function

Over 200 people enjoyed a pleasant evening at H.M.S. Berwick's first fortnightly dance since her return from Home at the China Fleet Club yesterday.

Among those seen at the dance were Lt. Comdr. Manly, Comdr. D. P. Cathier, R.N., Paym.-Lt. Comdr. Rees, Capt. E. R. Bent, D.S.O., R.N., and Chaplain Harvey.

Miss N. M. Annis and Mr. L. J. Taylor were winners of the spot walk competition, while Mrs. A. Fogwell and Mr. S. Collis won second place.

The prize for the ladies' lucky cloak-room ticket was won by Mrs. Huggins, while Mr. E. Seymour won the gentlemen's prize. The prizes were presented by Miss Pamela Potter.

The "Bruno Boys", under the direction of Mr. A. J. Savage, were in attendance.

The committee in charge comprised of Lt. Comdr. P. A. Berry (President), O. A. Lamoy, E. R. A. Leyman, A. D. Rich and Stoker Martin.

established and among the first to answer our signals was the Klungchow, which is also owned by the China Navigation Co. More capable assistance, however, was at hand in the shape of H. M. S. Dainty.

"Some misgivings then arose as to the number of the pirates, and if any were likely to be still lurking in the ship, so the Chinese quarters were battered down and the ship was escorted to Lyemooon Pass by H. M. S. Dainty. Here an armed guard of Marines was sent aboard and the ship was taken to Kowloon Bay. By two o'clock the press were aboard and were making hurried jottings which later appeared in an unrecognisable form."

WIRELESS NOT SMASHED

Returning again to the time of the piracy, Mr. Duncan said that the wireless apparatus had not been smashed, although on more than one occasion the pirates had been half inclined to do so.

"It is fortunate that it was not, because if it had been, we should have been unable to warn any rescue vessels which might have come too close and excited the pirates and consequently made them dangerous!"

"Great credit was due to Captain Smart for the way in which he stood the anxious strain of the responsibility in avoiding other vessels while he was being closely watched by three or four of the fiercer pirates."

"We should like to emphasise that we attach great importance to the religious aspect of this incident," continued Mr. Duncan, mentioning at the same time that as they were all members of the China Inland Missionary School this appealed to them more than it would have done to the ordinary man, adding, "and an organisation which makes a very special point of prayer to Almighty God, and he has answered our prayers and given us and the children our great fortitude which we found such a great help. I mention the great patience and endurance of the ladies and children and the firm and confident faith which we had that He would bring us to a safe issue, and but for this it would have been impossible to have endured the anxious strain of those three days."

MIRACULOUS ESCAPE

"On the purely physical side I think it was nothing less than miraculous that the continual flourishing of loaded pistols by the pirates did not result in a single mishap. Also that the captain, who had to continually steer his ship so as not to encounter other vessels, made such remarkable progress."

"It was amazing that the leader controlled the pirates so ably that after the arrival of the first plane, when they showed their first signs of panic, he managed to persuade them to launch one of the ship's boats instead of shooting wildly as they might easily have done."

The s.s. Tungchow, complete with passengers, leaves to-day at 8 p.m. to proceed with the journey to Chefoo which was so rudely interrupted.

SHENG AN PIRACY APPEAL TO THE SUPREME COURT

By the verdict of the Appellate Court Captain Hugo "Tubby" Taudien, Arthur Gautchi, Walter Muller and Hendrich Westermann were sentenced to death, and George Schroeder to 10 years' imprisonment. The verdict confirmed the sentences imposed on Taudien, Westermann and Schroeder by the lower court but altered the life sentences of Gautchi and Muller to death.

KILLED IN JUNE

The men are alleged to have boarded the Sheng An at Tangku on June 20 and to have pirated it when off the coast near Shanghai. After killing Captain B. Vikhman, the first mate, and the first mate's loving day.

SHANGHAI WIN RUGBY INTERPORT

BEATEN BY BOUNCE
Fifteen minutes from the start of the game Shanghai went further ahead when Humphreys scored, following a forward rush, the bounce of the ball beating the defence. Bidwell failed to convert.

Just before the interval Hong Kong reduced the arrears when McLellan landed a penalty goal with a good kick.

Hong Kong pressed from after the resumption and were again superior to Shanghai in the tight scrums, but their threequarters were unable to settle down.

MUNRO GOES OVER
After a passing bout McGill went over for another try, but Taylor failed to add to the score from the kick.

The visitors, undaunted by these reverses, fought back and were finally rewarded when a pass from Hutchison, the Colony stand-off-half, saw Munro go over the Shanghai line carrying two Shanghai defenders with him. Robertson converted the effort.

Five minutes from the end Bidwell went over for an unconverted try in the corner, while in the last minute of the game Robertson landed a penalty goal.—Reuter.

The teams were:—
Hong Kong:—L. G. Robertson; S. C. Archer, R. H. Griffiths, G. P. Lammert and D. A. Copplin; J. Hutchison and H. C. Mecke; A. F. Walkden, H. E. Peers, H. O. Kerrie; K. A. Munro, D. McLellan (Captain) and J. C. Millar.

Shanghai:—C. J. A. Taylor; G. S. McGill, J. P. C. Master, W. E. Grieve, H. D. Bidwell; J. Bowerman, R. F. Bix; J. S. Lee, J. S. Ritchie, D. McL. Wheeler, H. W. Carter, N. Hicks, R. J. P. Stewart, E. P. Humphreys and P. J. Poole.

PASTEL DRAWINGS OF CHINA

Exhibition At Komor
And Komor'sEUROPEAN ARTIST WITH A FUTURE

Mr. N. A. Weldemann who is passing through the Colony, has been induced by Messrs. Komor and Komor's to give an exhibition of his beautiful pastel pictures during his week's stay.

Mr. Weldemann has been travelling through China as a completion of his study under Professor Benois, the famous French painter.

Though Mr. Weldemann's paintings can be bought now for a mere trifle, it is certain that they will be very valuable later. This new European artist possesses excellent technique and unerring taste. Messrs. Komor and Komor's, who have handled many art exhibitions, are very enthusiastic about these drawings and predict a brilliant future for this gifted young man.

It is not very often that pastels are shown in Hong Kong and purchasers of Weldemann pictures will

AUTOMATIC SHERLOCK HOLMES INVENTED IN DENMARK

Concealed Light Betrays Thief

An automatic "Sherlock Holmes" has been invented in Denmark.

The device lights up a notice outside premises into which burglars have broken. It has just proved its worth.

Two men passing a provision shop saw the lighted warning outside and on entering the premises found a man there putting a number of fat geese in a sack.

They captured him and called up the police.

Some day point to an admired pastel with pride, saying: "I bought that at Mr. Weldemann's debut."

Messrs. Komor and Komor's cordially invite you to see what beauty can be in pastel and advise everyone to visit this latest exhibition. As Mr. Weldemann's stay in Hong Kong is limited, the exhibition will positively close next Saturday.

MOSCOW'S MOTTO

MEDALS AWARDED FOR VARIOUS TESTS

A national drive is going on in Moscow to make every Soviet youth an expert sharpshooter.

To encourage them to become crack shots special "Voroshilov" (Commissar for Defence and Commander-in-Chief of Army and Navy) medals are awarded to those passing certain sharpshooting tests.

"Every boy and girl a sniper" is the slogan.

"Sharpshooting will take its place only after gliding and parachute jumping," says an official paper, "On Guard," and adds that during next year one million first degree "Voroshilov" snipers must be trained. Already 600,000 hold the first degree medals.

MOTERING NOTES

ASSISTING DISTRESSED MOTORISTS

Grave Risks Involved

It has been stated in some quarters that the old chivalry of the road, when one motorist would stop to help another, does not now exist.

Of course not, for a variety of reasons, not the least of which is that motor-cars are more reliable, and when a motorist is stopped it is usually due to tyre trouble or because he has run out of petrol. Another reason is that motorists in the past who have chivalrously stopped to aid another motorist apparently in trouble have been brain-robbed with a spanner for their pains, robbed of their possessions, whilst (Continued At Foot Of Next Col.)

ROMANTIC RISE OF MORRIS

Lord Nuffield Originator
Of Famous Company

It is exactly 40 years ago since Lord Nuffield started business at the not-very-ripe age of seventeen. His factory was a small bicycle shop in Longwall Street, Oxford, and his capital was five pounds. His first attention to the newly-born motor industry, in which he has since made his name, was in the adaptation of his shop to deal with motor-repair work. In 1913 he produced his first car—reliable, economical to run, and only £165 to buy. The venture was an immediate success, though the advent of the War stopped car production for rather more than "the duration."

Post-war Expansion

In 1920, when the depression drove up other manufacturers' prices, Morris bravely reduced his. He began to extend his interests. Morris Commercial Cars, Limited, was floated in 1923, the Wolseley Company saved from a foreign purchaser in 1928, and the M.G. Car Company formed into a separate concern in 1930. In 1929 his services to the British motor industry were recognised with a baronetcy. On January 1 this year, for his extensive charitable and philanthropic works, he was elevated to the peerage, an honour most aptly due to the man who, in the words of the slogan, "made the British roads British."

FUMES CAUSE ACCIDENT

The Danger Of Shut Windows

Fumes from an old, worn engine killed a Birmingham car driver to sleep one early morning recently, with the result that he zigzagged along Coventry Road until he collided with a protection post. No serious damage was done, but it may serve as a lesson to owners of ageing cars. The trouble in this case was aggravated by the fact that all the windows were closed.

SAN FRANCISCO STRICTNESS

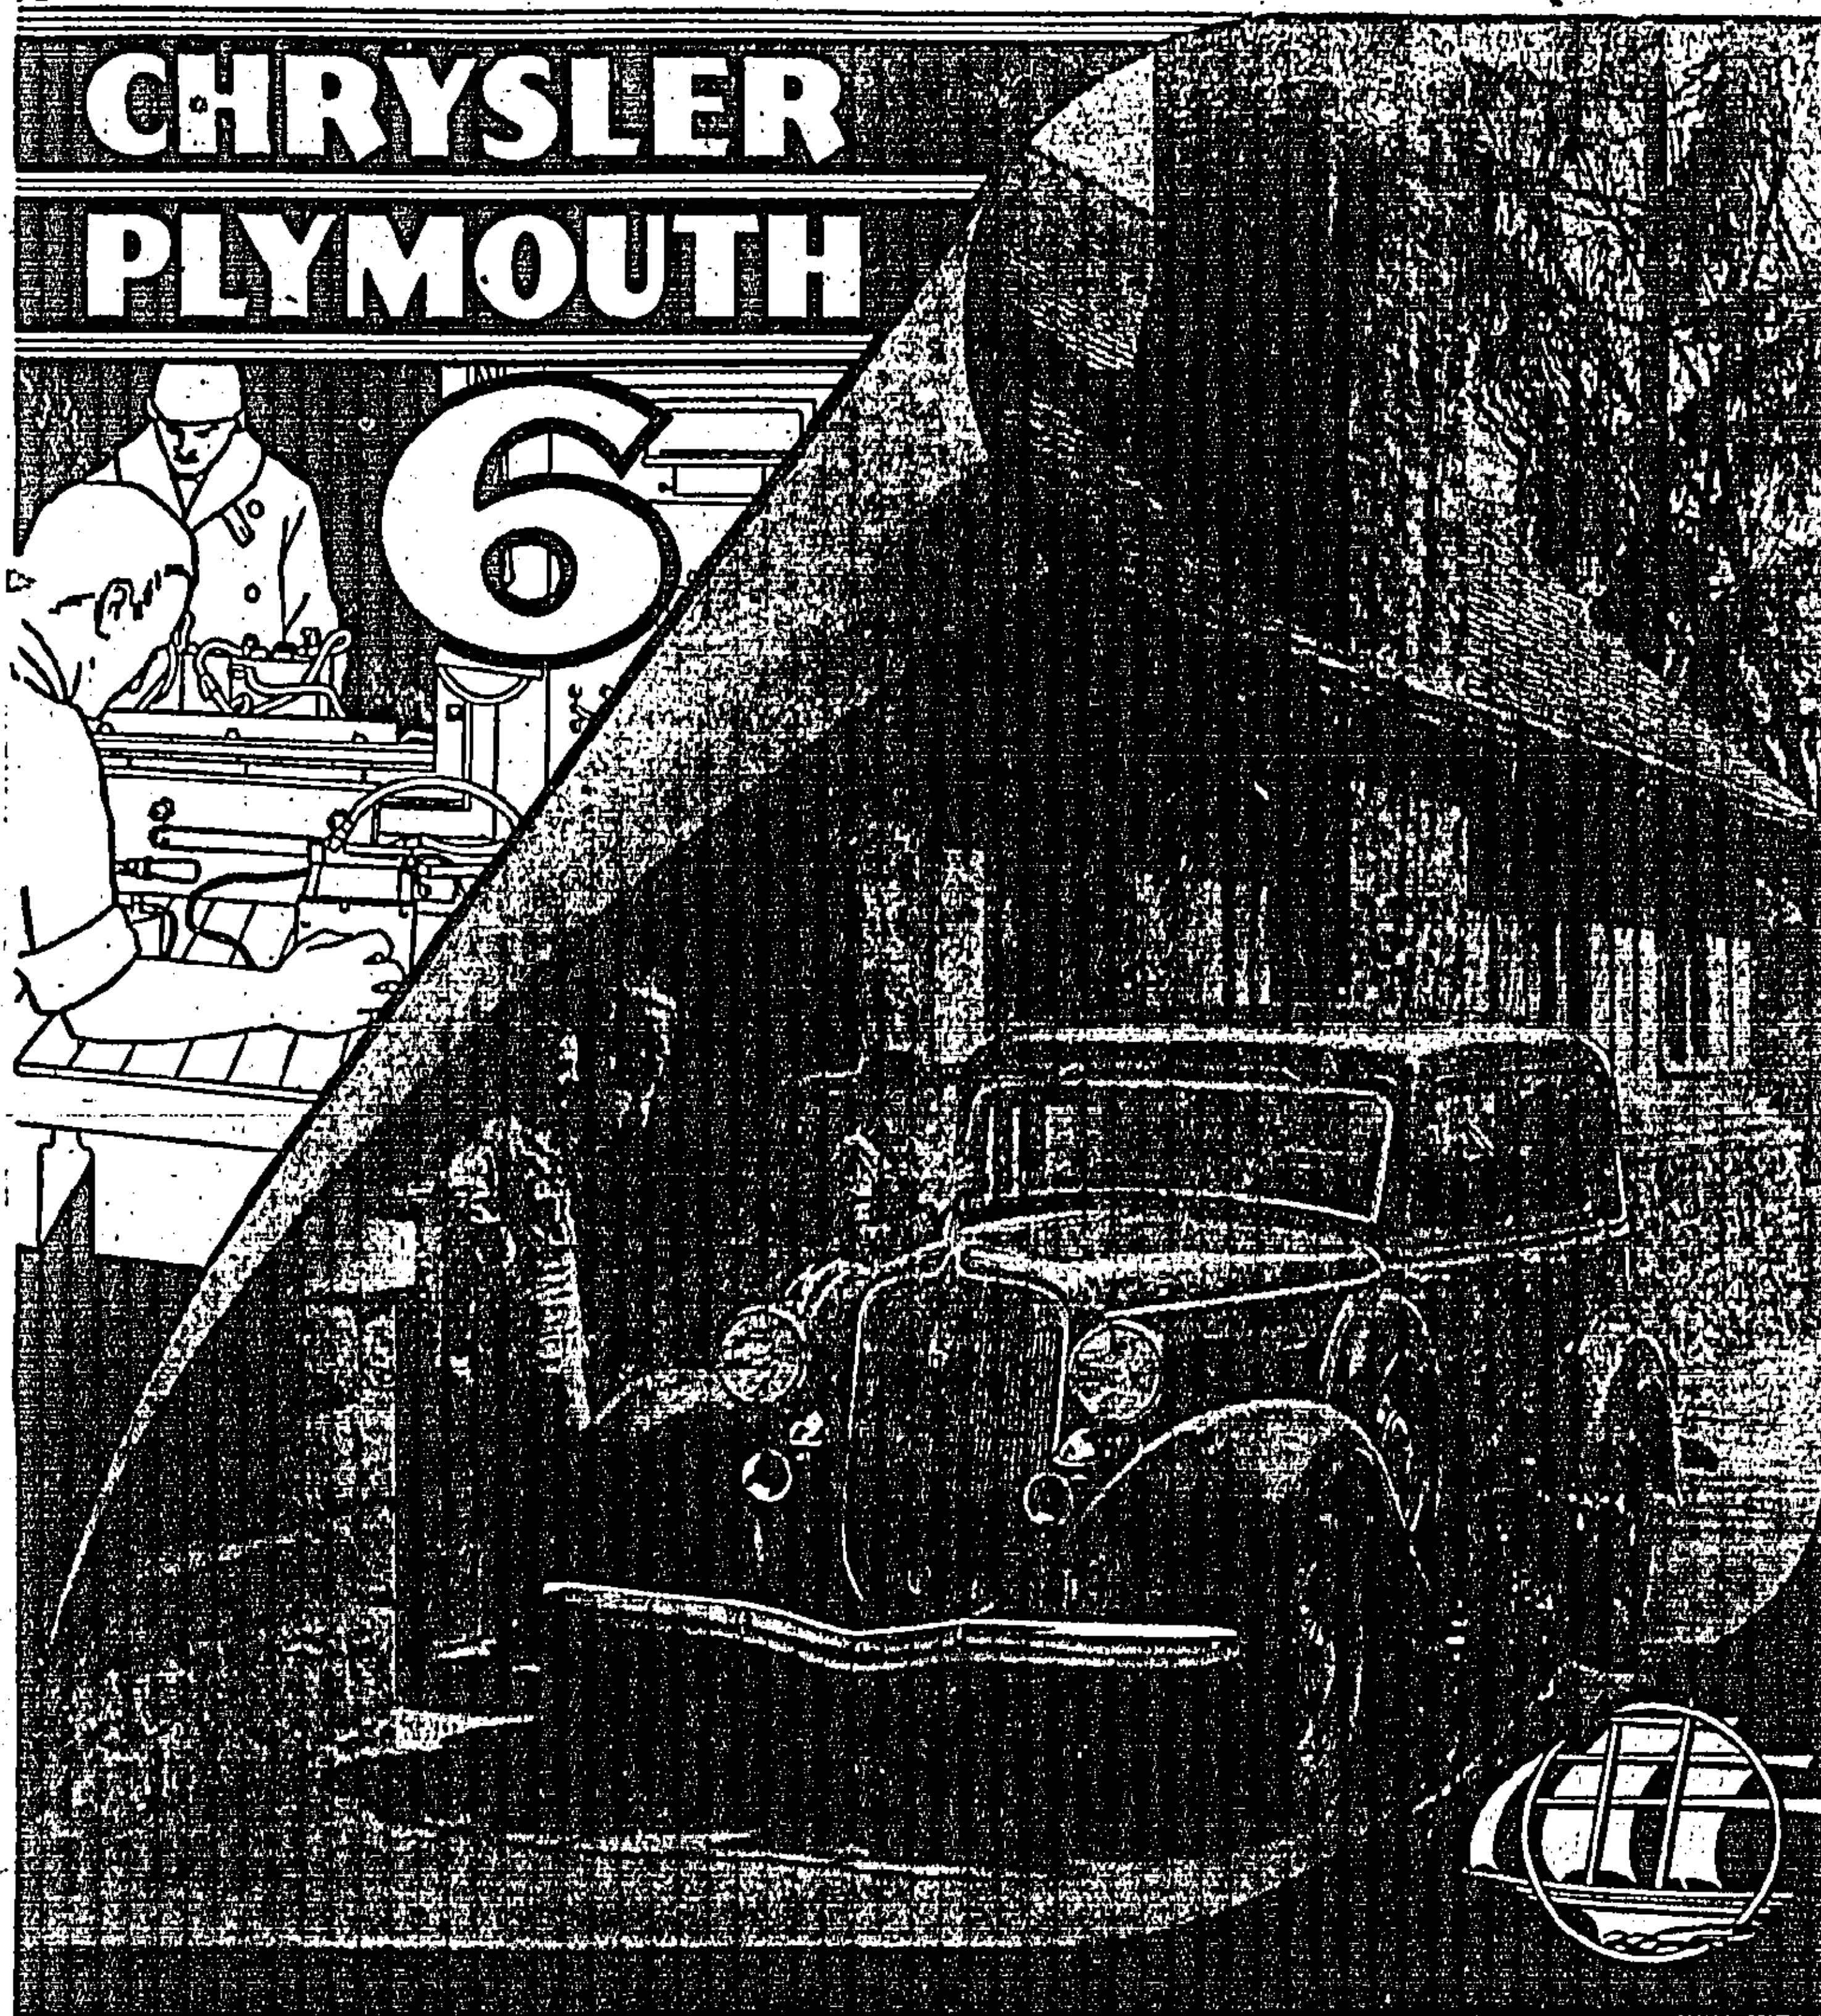

A strict San Francisco municipal ordinance requires used car dealers to register all salesmen and file a bond of $500 with the chief of police, take out a license to sell used cars, keep a record of all transactions and report within 48 hours when a used vehicle is acquired.

HEAVIER COMMERCIAL VEHICLES IN ENGLAND

In England and on the Continent there is a trend toward heavier commercial vehicles. Sixteen to 20-ton trucks and huge buses are coming into more general use.

There were 68,508 trucks and buses produced in the United Kingdom in 1933.

a second gang of thieves makes off with the car. Drivers should take no notice when at night they are signalled by another motorist to stop. Those who do are taking a grave risk.

INTERVENING BIDS

(By Lt.-Col. H. M. Bensley)
ANY bid made by your opponent after you or your partner have made a bid, whether it is an over-call or a "double," may be termed an "intervening" bid.

Any such bid naturally tends to hinder the exchange of information between you and your partner, but at the same time it is possible that these bids may give away valuable information which will assist you in locating certain important "honour" cards, and may also warn you with regard to possible weak spots in your own armour.

The value which you can attach to an intervening bid depends to a great extent on:

- (a) The vulnerability factor.
- (b) The nature of the bid.
- (c) The position of the bidder.

With regard to (a), if the opening bidder is vulnerable and the intervening bidder is vulnerable—then his bid must be treated with some respect. If the positions are reversed—the opening bidder is vulnerable and the intervening bidder is vulnerable—then his bid need not be taken too seriously.

With regard to (b)—any strength-showing bid—such as:

- (1) A jump over-call.
- (2) A double, or
- (3) An over-call in the same suit, i.e., a bid of Two Hearts over an opening bid of One Heart.

Must of course, be regarded as genuine, and should be dealt with cautiously, but a simple over-call, such as One Diamond over One Club, or Two Diamonds over One Spade, need not, at any rate temporarily, be credited with much value, but, of course, subsequent bids may indicate that it has greater merit.

With regard to (c) the position of the bidder—the value of any bids made by the opponent next to speak will, of course, vary, and can be fairly accurately estimated after due consideration of the various factors to which I have referred in the preceding paragraph.

However, a bid made by an opponent after you and your partner have both made bids should, of course, be regarded as of some value, especially if the bidder is vulnerable.

The hand given below was played in a recent duplicate match.

It is an example of an open South, followed by a double by West. South is dealer, and both sides are vulnerable.

North:

S-9 8 7
H-8 6 3
D-Q 7 2
C-Q J 5 2

West:

S-Q 10 5 3
H-A J 7 5 2
D-J
C-A K 4

East:

S-A J 6
H-K 4
D-9 8 4
C-10 9 8 6 3

South:

S-K 4 2
H-Q 10 9
D-A K 10 6 5 3
C-7

The bidding in the two rooms was as follows:

Room I

Rnd. 1 2 3
S. 1D. No No
W. Dble. 2H. No No
N. No No No
E. 2C. 2S.

Room II

Rnd. 1 2 3
S. 1D. No No
W. Dble. 2H. 4H.
N. No No No
E. 2C. 3H.

You will note that in Room I, the bidding stopped at 2 Spades—but in Room II, partners had bidders if you underbid, though sufficient confidence in each other doubtless you can occasionally carry the bidding up to a game contract, which was fulfilled.

In each room after the opening bid of One Diamond by South, West doubled. As West is vulnerable—the double indicates a strong hand—his hand will be one of the following the persistent underbidder.

Who Goes Home?

yet taken part in the debate. The Speaker called the man's name.

"For God's sake, wind up for us, Loxton," whispered Carter Cooper. "Shadley is ill." Loxton looked round and nodded.

"All right," he assented, and he rose to his feet and began.

In the smoking-room the members were discussing the chances of the success of the Bill that had been old Shadley's hope and pride for so long. When they saw the time and read Loxton's name on the tape as the member at present speaking there was some surprise. "What's happened to Shadley? I thought he was going to wind up," said one member of the other.

"If the old man's not going to speak, there's no point in going in to hear the end."

"We might as well wait here till the division."

"I've heard old Shadley on this subject for the past ten years. I can't see any fun in listening to him again."

"But he's ill," Cooper got a note to say he was ill.

"Poor old chap." And so on.

In the chamber itself the tide of excitement was rising. Loxton was doing exceedingly well. Behind him Carter Cooper was smiling happily. Loxton carried the war into the enemy's camp. He attacked the doctors. He attacked the Church for not taking sides, and then he changed his tactics and began to plead. He spoke of animals as only animal lovers can, and he told a story of his early days as a circus hand.

The House listened enthralled. Those who had resented his attacks now felt the speaker's sincerity, and listened attentively. And Big Ben, still casting its shadow over the Chamber with the strength of a November moon behind, slowly ticked away the minutes.

As the great clock chimed out the three-quarters Edward Shadley rang the bell on his desk. He was breathing with difficulty. When the messenger entered the room, he saw types:

- (1) One which holds the suit bid (Diamonds) and strength distributed in other suits.
- (2) One which does not hold the diamond suit, but strength distributed over the other three suits.
- (3) A hand suitable for a strategic double, containing one very strong suit and a little outside strength.

In this case it was a hand of type (2).

Mutual confidence in a partnership is essential to success. The difference between the bidding in the two rooms is an illustration.

After South's vulnerable opening bid of One Diamond, West doubled. Note that West is also vulnerable. A double in this position indicates a strong hand.

East in each case responds to the double with a bid of Two Clubs. This, of course, is a forced response. East may hold a fair hand, or nothing of any value. The bid in itself gives little information, but the inference to be drawn from it is that East does not hold a biddable major suit.

Now in each room West bids Two Hearts. In Room I, East responded with a bid of Two Spades. This bid in itself should show West that East's hand is not trickless, and is an encouraging bid. East could have passed. West showed a lack of confidence in his partner in not continuing to bid, and as a result failed to reach a game contract, which was arrived at in Room II.

In Room II, East showed confidence in his partner's double and bid Three Hearts, and thereby encouraged West to bid and make game.

The psychological effect of an intervening bid varies considerably. Against some players it tends to excite them and goads them on to overbid their hands. Against others of a more cautious temperament it has a deterrent effect, inasmuch as in their anxiety to avoid incurring penalties they underbid their hands. At Contract, to underbid is almost as great a crime as to overbid. You cannot win rub—but in Room II, partners had bidders if you underbid, though sufficient confidence in each other doubtless you can occasionally carry the bidding up to a game contract, which was fulfilled.

In each room after the opening bid of One Diamond by South, West doubled. As West is vulnerable—the double indicates a strong hand—his hand will be one of the following the persistent underbidder.

that all was not well with the Minister.

"Aren't you feeling well, sir?" he asked.

"I'm all right, Heming," replied Shadley, "but I wonder if you could get me a glass of brandy... just a small glass. I think it's my heart."

"All right, sir. I'll be back in a minute," said Heming and he made his way hurriedly to the lobby bar, and ordered the brandy. As he walked back along the corridor he could hear the shouts from the Chamber.

"All those in-favour, say 'Aye.' And a roar of 'Ayes' rent the air. The contrary—'No.' The 'Noes' thundered their reply.

"'Ayes' to the right, 'Noes' to the left. Tellers for the 'Ayes' Mr. Carter Cooper and Mr. Williams. Tellers for the 'Noes' Dr. Hurst and Sir Edgar Bentile. Lock the doors."

As the attendants ran to the doors, Heming entered the Minister of Health's room. Then the division bells rang.

It was a fairly full House, and the division dragged on. In the 'Ayes' lobby many Members asked how Edward Shadley was, for the news had spread rapidly, and his note to Carter Cooper had been read by several eyes. Carter Cooper was on the 'No' door and Ted Williams, a miners' leader, on the 'Aye' door. Slowly the lobbies cleared, and the last few Members walked down the lobby corridor and turned the corner to pass the clerks at their desks.

"Twenty-four," counted Ted Williams, "Any more?" he asked the clerk.

"Mr. Shadley," he said, and with his pencil he ticked off the name on his list as Edward Shadley came through. He bowed slightly as he passed the tellers.

"Twenty-five," counted Ted Williams.

The House was full when the tellers formed up preparatory to marching towards the table. A mass of members stood behind the bar of the House. There was silence and then the four tellers began to move. There was a roar of greeting when it was seen that the tellers for the 'Ayes' were on the right, for that meant that the Bill had been passed in the third reading and would go to the Upper House.

'Ayes' to the right two hundred and twenty-five, 'Noes' to the left two hundred and twenty-four," announced Carter Cooper, and a roar of cheering and counter-cheering went up.

No one believed Heming, but he swore to the Speaker that when he entered the Minister of Health's room as the Division bells first began to ring, he found Edward Shadley dead in his chair. Furthermore he did not leave him for at least two minutes and then he called in the policeman who was standing at the end of the corridor.

It was not till the following day that members learnt what had happened, for the call of "Who goes Home?" had echoed through the corridors immediately after the division and members had hurried away. Edward Shadley, though they did not know it, had already gone.

FIRE OUTBREAK AT SHAIKIWAN

Glass Factory Badly Damaged

FOUR ENGINES CALLED

Fire broke out at about six o'clock last night at the Sin Po Hing glass factory, situated next door to the Bakilly Medicine and Perfumery Manufactory, Nos. 10-22 Shaukiwan Road. It appeared to have started in the centre of the building, afterwards spreading upwards to the roof.

Four appliances from the Central Fire Station and Wanchai were quickly on the spot and the blaze was extinguished by 7.30.

The cause of the fire and the extent of the damage are not yet known.

PEPPER SITUATION

Of the meetings held yesterday in an endeavour to deal with the situation one was held at the head office of one of the big banks. It is rumoured that a big group is prepared to take over the stocks provided the Dutch Government will agree to a restriction scheme. The Dutch East Indies produce about 80 per cent. of the world's pepper.

It is stated that negotiations are now proceeding at Amsterdam with the Dutch Government, in order to persuade them to agree to restriction, but well-informed Amsterdam circles opine that this is very unlikely, but the negotiators are hopeful of success.—Ruter.

It was reported on Friday that the Strauss failure had completely upset the London produce markets and that a big financial group, that had been buying pepper at rising prices, might be unable to meet its commitments, amounting to between $1,000,000 and $2,000,000, on February 8.
